Nipponese Reveal Plan to Forge China Into Bloc With Manchoukuo Under Domination of Empire.

POSTWAR POLICY DEVELOPS QUICKLY

Puppet Figures Reported in Agreement for New Mainland Regime.

TOKYO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Japan tonight warned the world of her intention to forge China into a solid bloc with Manchoukuo and the Japanese Empire for the political and economic domination of East Asia.

Extension of her domination over China to carry out Japan's "immutable policy" for Far Eastern reconstruction after the present war with China, was formally announced with the Japanese government's aim envisioning an "Asia for the Asiatics."

Empire Doubled. It meant that insular Japan—her principal islands comprising some 148,000 square miles—intends to more than double the vast empire unrolling behind her conquering armies and make Japanese interests supreme despite the protests of the United States and other foreign powers.

Already Tokyo rules 575,000 square miles of the Asiatic mainland—Korea, annexed in 1910, and Manchoukuo, a puppet empire created out of Manchuria by conquest in 1931-33. That territory has been doubled by the present war.

Permanent Stability. "What Japan seeks is establishment of a new order which will ensure permanent stability in East Asia," said the statement. "In this lies the ultimate purpose of our military campaign."

The statement indicated Japan considered China, with half her populace and virtually all seaports and large cities now under Japanese control, would become a protectorate like Manchoukuo.

The puppet regimes of Peiping and Nanking were said to have reached agreement on such a government in a session at Nanking. Similar Pan-Asiatic sentiments were expressed today by the foreign office spokesman replying to a question concerning the probable tenor of Japan's reply to the United States note of October 6 demanding that Japan end what America termed interference with her trade in China.

He said Asiatics "can hardly accept as fair treatment" the existence of colonies of western powers throughout Asia and Africa and declared the belief that "All men are created equal" was becoming strong among Asiatics.

No reply has been made thus far to the United States note.

Berlin Correspondent Gives Vivid Pictures of Hitler, the Man.

By JUNIUS B. WOOD. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—"What is the man, Hitler?" a curious world asks. Nothing is heard about him as a man, though he must work, eat and sleep as others do. His name is in the newspapers every day, with a picture of some activity almost every day, while a weekly magazine would not appear without a new assortment of Hitler photographs. But even a hint about his personal life is rare in Germany. To Germans, he is a living symbol of state and, to many, so near to being a deity that thought of the needs of ordinary mortals would mar the vision.

Hitler is not married and shows no sentimental interest in the fair sex. He is a teetotaler, a vegetarian and does not smoke. The world knows this, and without further ado decides he is abnormal or a lucky opportunist. An individual who dominates 80,000,000 people—recent events may include all of Europe—cannot be normal.

2,000 VOLUNTEERS BEGIN CHEST DRIVE

Launch Annual Appeal for 32 Agencies of Human Services Today.

Asked to go out with supreme confidence in success and as "salesmen of the finest product in the world—charity," 2,000 workers in the Community Chest campaign launched the annual appeal for 32 agencies of human service last night at a rally in the Athletic Club.

Bobby Jones, campaign chairman, declared the organization was the largest and most enthusiastic he had ever seen in a Chest campaign.

"We are asking the people of Atlanta to have a joy in giving, just as we have a joy in working," he said. "We feel that this is a great civic undertaking for a great community."

Solicitation Today. The workers will begin active solicitation today, with the first report meeting set for 12:30 Friday at the Athletic Club.

Karl L. Landgrebe, Birmingham civic leader, and nationally-known industrialist, was the principal speaker at the rally.

"The Community Chest is the application of modern business principles and methods to the problems of charity and suffering," he said. "It is the control of our emotions by our reason. It is the adaptation of corporate efficiency to the problems of social service."

Protection for Public. "It is the only method by which the public can be protected against unreasonable and unworthy demands made in the name of charity and at the same time be assured that the needed services will receive the money necessary for their operation."

In this campaign, he said, Atlanta has the finest opportunity to publicize to the country that this is a city that can do things and is a good place to live.

"Each year the Chest campaign does an amazing job in carrying its simple story, its undeniable plea, to scores of thousands of individuals throughout the city and country. It is a titanic task. It is accomplished superbly.

468 Convicts Beg for Life Of Murderer

Sign Petition to Governor and 500 Join in Prayer Demonstration.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The prisoners in Allegheny county's jail knelt in prayer tonight in a unique demonstration seeking to save the life of William McKinley Blackwell, a fellow inmate scheduled to walk the last mile to the electric chair next Sunday night.

And 468 of them signed a petition to Governor Earle pleading for a commutation of sentence for the man convicted of the murder of Richard Parker, a rival for the affections of his common-law wife. "We who know him," read the petition, "who have eaten and smoked with him for a year and a half, beseech you to save this man that he may live to see you lead to the constructive expansion of humanity."

Warden John McNeil said the prayer and petition were a demonstration of faith in a fellow prisoner he never had seen in his 40 years at the jail. He joined in signing the petition.

McNeil said the usual attendance at the Wednesday night prayer service is 125 but tonight 300 men crowded into the cell area and 200 more stood on the tiers. Standing in the front row the condemned man joined in singing the first hymn "God Will Take Care of You." Asked by Captain A. W. Stremmel to say a few words, Blackwell responded: "I don't have much education so I can't express myself very well. But whether we know 'A' from 'B' we know how to ask God to save us from the devil and lead us to Heaven when our turn comes."

Blackwell is 40. He was convicted of slaying Parker, 44, July 9, 1936, in near-by Whitaker, and sentenced to die in the electric chair on October 10. Governor Earle granted a reprieve until November 7.

GOVERNOR RUSHES TO WASHINGTON FOR ROAD FUNDS

Rivers Seeks To Avoid Cancellation of PWA Highway Grants for Construction in Georgia

LOSS OF $6,000,000 IS FACING STATE

Officials in Capital Fail To Approve Funds; Executive Still Hopeful.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Cancelling the rest of an uncompleted speaking tour in Indiana, Governor Rivers rushed into Washington today seeking to avoid cancellation of PWA highway grants to Georgia which he said would cost the state upwards of $6,000,000 in road and bridge construction.

Georgia's chief executive revealed that, unless a new arrangement is worked out between the State Highway Board and Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, the state will receive only about $600,000 for projects out of more than $7,000,000 sought in applications made by the state.

Met by Gillis. The Governor was met here by Chairman Jim L. Gillis, of the state democratic executive committee, who also is a member of the State Highway Board. With Gillis he conferred at length with Administrator Ickes and other officials of the PWA on the highway fund and the state's application for $7,750,000 for a new state hospital at Milledgeville.

Tonight the Governor reported as follows: "We had some satisfaction in our conferences today on the highway money and I believe we will be able to save a portion of it. As for the hospital all I can say is that I am hopeful. We may know something definite tomorrow."

It was learned here tonight that the PWA has failed to approve Georgia's applications because the state does not have necessary matching money available. No More Funds. Chairman W. L. Miller, speaking in Atlanta, said that under its present program the state will not have any more funds to match the PWA money.

For several weeks there have been reports in Atlanta that Governor Rivers had been in Washington. He is expected to return here tomorrow.

Jimmy Walker Sports Black Eye--Ex-Mayor Falls From Cherry Tree

Cuts and Bruises Also Are Suffered in 'One-Story' Plunge.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Cuts and bruises—and a black eye—adorned the familiar features of former Mayor James J. Walker today.

He got them falling from a cherry tree—"honestly," he said. Walker said he tumbled while removing wreckage of the recent hurricane at his country place on Long Island.

Walker has led a quiet life since returning here from his sojourn in England, which followed his retirement from politics.

First, he became a "gentleman farmer," raising prize-winning dogs and radishes on his farm. Then, just to keep his hand in the big city, he and Mrs. Walker, the former Betty Compton, opened a flower shop in Manhattan. He keeps his hand in the finan-

COMMONS OKAYS ANGLO-ITALO PACT Agreement Is Expected To Become Effective About November 15.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain won an overwhelming victory tonight in the house of commons, which approved by 345 votes to 138 his determined decision to bring the April 16 Anglo-Italian friendship pact into operation.

Before the vote Chamberlain declared the Spanish war was "no longer a menace to the peace of Europe," and urged parliamentary approval of immediate effectiveness of his accord with Premier Mussolini. No date has been formally set for the treaty to become effective, but political observers believed November 15 the most likely day. Sharp opposition developed in house of commons, however.

Anthony Eden, who resigned last February 20 as foreign secretary because of dissatisfaction with Chamberlain's policies, accused Italy of lacking good faith. Arthur Greenwood, Laborite, declared the price of the Anglo-Italian agreement signed the day before last Easter "is going to be paid by the people of Spain."

In a moving passage of his remarks Chamberlain frankly sought to justify the accord with Italy on the basis, among other things, of "putting the finger" on other agents. "We did not," Turrou said. "Why?" "We didn't think it was necessary. We told him to be in our office at 9 o'clock the next morning."

A mysterious "spy code" match box seized from Dr. Griebel was introduced in evidence, prompting Fraulein Hofmann's attorney, George C. Dix, to question Turrou on Dr. Griebel's departure.

Turrou said Dr. Griebel swore he knew nothing about the code on the inner cover of the match box and explained it had been given to him by Karl Schlueter, a fugitive German agent, to be delivered to Eleanor Boehme, youthful Hunter College graduate.

Miss Boehme, who appeared as a government witness yesterday, testified she unwittingly served as a messenger for German agents on several visits she made to the S. S. Europa while the liner was in port. "It's My Story—and I'll Stick to It," Says Jimmy. As to politics—"never again."

Nazi Spy's Death Threat Told at Trial Agent Didn't Arrest Fugitive—Because He Told Him To Come to Office.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A tale of a death threat was told today in the federal court trial of three alleged German espionage agents.

Leon G. Turrou, former FBI sleuth, testified the threat was made in the New York FBI headquarters last spring while Fraulein Johanna (Jenni) Hofmann, 26, one of the defendants, and Dr. Ignatz T. Griebel, former Park Avenue physician, were questioned about their alleged spy activities on behalf of the German government.

"Dr. Griebel told Miss Hofmann he would have her shot for the information she gave," Turrou said.

"Did you do anything about it?" he was asked. "No," Turrou replied. "I just cautioned him not to threaten her again." Fraulein Hofmann allegedly served as "payoff" agent and courier for the ring. Dr. Griebel, a former United States army medical reserve officer and German bund leader, fled to Germany before his indictment was voted by a federal grand jury, before which he testified.

"Did you take Dr. Griebel into custody?" asked Miss Hoffman's attorney, G. C. Dix, who repeatedly has charged that Turrou let Dr. Griebel escape in return for "putting the finger" on other agents.

"We did not," Turrou said. "Why?" "We didn't think it was necessary. We told him to be in our office at 9 o'clock the next morning."

A mysterious "spy code" match box seized from Dr. Griebel was introduced in evidence, prompting Fraulein Hofmann's attorney, George C. Dix, to question Turrou on Dr. Griebel's departure. DICTATORS AWARD HUNGARY LANDS Occupation To Start on 5th; Budapest Gets 4,872 Square Miles.

VIENNA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—German and Italian mediators re-mapped the World War-created boundaries of Czechoslovakia today awarding Hungary the major portion of land and population she claimed from the shrinking republic.

Official figures were lacking, but it was estimated Hungary gained 4,875 square miles with 860,000 inhabitants. Czechoslovakia already has lost Sudetenland to Adolf Hitler and the Tscheng region to Poland. Before Rome and Berlin were called in to mediate, Czechoslovakia had agreed to cede 3,800 square miles without arbitration but the rest of Hungary's original demands—estimated as high as 8,000 square miles—were put up to the totalitarian powers for final decision.

Get Ruthenian Capital. Foreign Ministers Count Galeazzo Ciano, of Italy, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, of Germany, in a short meeting today, gave Hungary a wide strip of the territory she demanded, including Uzhorod, capital of autonomous Ruthenia, and the only railway connecting Ruthenia with Slovakia.

In the disputed region only Bratislava, on the Danube near the juncture of Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Germany, was left to the central Prague government along with the city of Nitra in southwestern Slovakia. Both Czechoslovakia and Hungary agreed to accept the award as final and to start fulfilling it at once. Occupation of the territory is to be started November 5 and completed November 10. A Hungarian-Czechoslovakia committee was provided to work out the stages of occupation.

To Respect Rights. Czechoslovakia agreed to leave the lost territory in orderly condition and to give the Hungarian minority in Bratislava the same rights as other minorities.

German sources estimated that of the 860,000 persons in ceded territory, 720,000 were Hungarian and the rest Slovaks, Ruthenians and Jews.

In addition to losing Uzhorod, Ruthenia's capital and the seat of the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church, Czechoslovakia was horn of Kosice, Munkacs, Lozonn and Leva, all populous cities. The arbitrators chose an old census as the basis of the award. The latest 1930 census according to Hungarian figures showed the

THOSE BALLOTING MARK UP 'YES' BUT NOT ENOUGH VOTE

Every One of 15 Items Indorsed by Margins Running as High as 20 For to 1 Against Issue.

LEADERS REGRET ISSUES' FAILURE

Law Requires Approval of Majority of All Registered To Cast Ballot.

Atlanta and Fulton county yesterday failed to ratify the $6,550,000 bond issue, by failing to turn out in large enough numbers to give the bonds a favorable vote equal to a majority of the registered voters, unofficial returns compiled by The Constitution showed early this morning.

Every item on both the city and the county ballots was given huge majorities, running as high as 20 votes to one in favor of the proposals. But in each governmental unit, the majorities in favor of the bonds were from 2,000 to 3,000 ballots short of the constitutional requirement for a majority of those registered.

Reason for Loss. Even if every one of the issues had received affirmatively all the votes polled for and against them, none would have carried under the state constitution, because:

1. Two-thirds of those voting must cast their ballots for bonds, a condition which was complied with by overwhelming majorities.
2. The two-thirds voting for bonds must constitute a majority of the total number of registered voters.

The $6,550,000 would have brought more than $15,000,000 in public improvements for hospitals, schools, auditorium, parks, streets, highways and a host of other urgently needed projects.

Registered Voters. Fulton county had 45,404 registered voters, and Atlanta 33,607, according to figures released last night by registrars.

In order to carry Fulton bonds, 22,445 must have voted affirmatively, and in the city, 16,804 minimum votes were required. On the basis of the unofficial figures, none of the 15 items received the required constitutional vote.

Citizen inertia was blamed for the failure of the issue last night, and leaders issued statements expressing regrets that issues failed. All, however, expressed hope that some means will be found to take advantage of "vast federal ex-

DANIEL'S SENTENCE UPHELD ON APPEAL

Four-Year Term Given Pal of 'Pee Wee' Burns Affirmed.

A four-year prison sentence given Fred Daniels in his conviction for the robbery of Pete Modena, Macon restaurateur, was affirmed by the Georgia Court of Appeals yesterday.

with Pee Wee Burns and Charles Thompson for the theft of jewelry, whisky and cash from the Modena home.

In the appeal defense counsel said the trial judge rejected a written request to charge the jury on the law that no one could have property rights in whisky and it could not be subject to larceny or robbery.

The appellate court said "the legislature did not intend to say that it was wise to license robbery so as to discourage intoxication." Conviction of Thompson in the Modena robbery recently was affirmed by the Court of Appeals. The case against Burns is pending in the lower court.

RICH INDIAN'S WIDOW FREED ON OWN WORD

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(P)—

Mrs. Anna Laura Barnett was released from jail today on her own recognizance after she had assured United States Commissioner Head she would make no attempt to regain possession of the mansion that belonged to the late Jackson Barnett, wealthy Creek Indian.

Mrs. Barnett was arrested on a charge of resisting federal officers last Sunday when federal agents confiscated her home as a result of the federal courts holding that her marriage to the wealthy Indian was illegal.

GAS TAX SHARES GO TO COUNTIES

Checks Totaling $270,985
Are Mailed Out.

The state Treasurer's office was mailing checks totaling $270,985.93 yesterday to Georgia's 159 counties for their share in the gasoline tax collected in October on September sales.

The counties receive 1 cent of the 6-cent state levy, apportioned on the basis of state highway mileage within the borders of each county. The last legislature changed the payment to counties from quarterly to monthly basis.

The total state mileage to date in Georgia counties is 11,023,648, and they receive $24.58 per mile as this month's share.

Four cents of the gasoline tax goes to the state Highway Department and the remaining 1 cent to the common school equalization fund designed to even opportunities of city and rural school children.

Based on last year's peak figure, the gasoline tax would yield approximately $3,125,000 annually for each 1 cent. The federal government levies an additional penny per gallon.

Two Couples Battle To Adopt 10-Month-Old Wail, While Two Welfare Bureaus Fight Shy of Burden

Judge Denies Petitions, But Public Agencies Refuse Responsibility.

WESTPORT, Conn., Nov. 2.—(P)—The eagerness of the two opposing couples to adopt 10-month-old Betty Lou Francos, central figure of a probate court battle here, was matched today by the reluctance of the welfare department of two towns to assume care of the child.

Probate Judge Austin Wakeman's decision yesterday denied adoption petitions brought by Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Brown, of Westport, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Buttery, of Norwalk, both of whom had entered into adoption agreements with the baby's unwed mother, Anna Francos, of New York.

Judge Wakeman ordered the child placed in the custody of "the welfare department" but she re-head of the welfare department at Norwalk where Betty Lou's mother is employed as a domestic, told Judge Wakeman her agency could not assume responsibility for the child because the mother had not established a legal residence, and Westport's welfare director, Howell F. Fuller, pointed out that the law provides that his department care only for "neglected" children. He suggested Betty Lou, with two families wanting to adopt her, was anything but neglected.

Fuller said he would confer with the mother and indicated he would suggest to her that she place the baby in a New York institution. The contending families, he said, could then start adoption proceedings anew.

Workmen Dig in Westminster To Solve Shakespearean Mystery

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(P)—Brawny British workmen today threw a canvas screen around Westminster Abbey's famed Poets' Corner where spades and shovels may uncover some clue to the long-debated authorship of the Shakespearean works.

Under the eyes of the dean of Westminster, the Rev. Paul de Labilliere, an exploration was started near the tomb of Edmund Spenser, "the prince of poets," who died in 1599.

Those who argue Sir Francis Bacon wrote the masterpieces attributed to William Shakespeare hope to find a specimen of Shakespeare's handwriting to compare with Bacon's to show whether the dramatist and the essayist were one and the same. Historians say contemporary poets paid tribute to Spenser by writing and dropping elegies to him into his grave. Some scholars saw little hope of success since they contended Shakespeare was a minor poet when Spenser died and would not have been in the company of Spenser's distinguished mourners.

SPANISH CRUISER SINKS FREIGHTER

Guns' Flashes Seen From British Coast; Crew and Passengers Saved.

CROMER, Norfolk, England, Nov. 2.—(P)—The Spanish insurgent motor vessel Nadir Shelled and sank the Spanish government freighter Cantabria just a few miles outside the territorial waters off the English east coast today.

Survivors of the government freighter reaching Cromer near where the battle started said the Cantabria defied the "surrender or fight" order signaled from the Nadir about 2 p. m.

The Nadir then sent shell after shell into the shuddering framework of the Cantabria for about three hours and battered her into a hulk before the freighter caught fire.

Crew, Passengers Saved.

The crew and passengers then were taken off. A coastal lifeboat took off the captain, his wife and their two children and the second steward. The captain, speaking through an interpreter, said there were 37 members of the crew and passengers, including three women and five children. Most survivors were taken off by the Nadir and 10 or 11 by the London-bound steamer, Pattersonian.

The captain said he knew of no casualties but said the Cantabria sank just after he left the ship. She was of 5,649 tons with her home port at Santander, now insurgent-held. The vessel was owned by the Midatlantic Shipping Company, of London.

Broadside After Broadside.

He described the Nadir's armament as five guns, which fired broadside after broadside into the Cantabria.

The Pattersonian, a 315-ton steamer from Newcastle, however, wirelessed the coastguard station that she had 11 men aboard from the Cantabria and needed a lifeboat to remove them and to rush injured crewmen to the great Yarmouth hospital.

INTERESTS OF U. S. IN FOREIGN TRADE CITED BY OFFICIAL

Economic Isolation Termed Companion of Political Isolation for Nation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(P)—Addressing the twenty-fifth annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council, Assistant Secretary of State George S. Messersmith said today "there is no such thing in this modern world as political isolation which does not result in a corresponding degree of economic isolation."

"There is," the diplomat continued, "no phase of our business, economic, social, cultural and political life which will not be affected in a greater or lesser degree by events beyond our frontiers. These are facts which we cannot escape and we will do well to recognize them in time."

Protection of Interests. Foreign relations of the United States, Messersmith said, "are going to be very much more perplexing and we are going to have increasingly difficult problems. We must be prepared to protect our interests whenever they may be attacked as the result of the adoption by any states of policies based on force and coercion, or of endeavors to propagate their ideas beyond their borders."

In discussing the economic consequences of isolation, Messersmith—former consul general in Berlin and ambassador to Austria until shortly before the time of German annexation—said:

"At the end of 1937, the United States was the world's greatest exporter, with merchandise shipments abroad valued at $3,345,000,000. Purchases of foreign essential raw materials and other imports necessary to the maintenance of our industry and commerce were valued at $3,084,000,000."

13 Per Cent Total. "In other words, during this most recent year . . . the foreign trade of the United States represented 13 per cent of the total export and import trade of the world. How futile it is to argue, as some do, that a volume of trade such as this does not have a vital bearing upon our internal life and upon the standard of living of our population."

"It is worth while to refer to those who are tempted to dismiss the importance of foreign trade with the statement that after all our exports only represent 7 1/2 per cent of total production of movable goods in the United States. This argument entirely ignores the importance of foreign trade to our agricultural and industrial interests and to specific areas of the country. To see this picture more clearly, it must be realized that last year 36 per cent of our tobacco, 44 per cent of our cotton, 18 per cent of our lead, 36 per cent of our naval stores, 40 per cent of our lubricating greases, 12 per cent of our radios, 23 per cent of our office equipment, 10 per cent of our automobiles and 35 per cent of our aircraft went into foreign markets."

LENI REIFENSTAHL EN ROUTE TO U. S.

Friend of Hitler To Show Olympic Film.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Red-haired Leni Reifenstahl, actress friend of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, of Germany, is on her way to the United States to offer Americans a two-and-a-half-hour motion picture of the 1936 Olympic games. Fraulien Reifenstahl, 30-year-old daughter of a plumber, said she had turned down suggestions of American distributors that the film be cut, and would exhibit it as a road-show if necessary, touring college towns of the country.

SMYRNA WILL BALLOT ON MAYOR, COUNCILMEN

SMYRNA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Smyrna voters will go to the polls Saturday to cast their ballots for mayor and two councilmen.

Mayor J. D. Cowan, incumbent, is without opposition. Dr. Dewey C. Landers and John Tattam are candidates for aldermanic posts to fill the seats now held by Dr. M. L. Collins and C. B. Austin, who are not candidates for reelection.

Dog Witnessed Death

Husband Nichols With Dog That Witnessed Death.

MOTHER'S DEATH BAFFLES POLICE

Husband Declares Dog Would Have Saved Her From Harm.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 2.—(UP)—The husband of pretty Mrs. Marion L. Nichols, young mother whose death early Sunday has baffled police, said last night her pet German police dog would have been able to defend her against any who attempted to bring her harm.

"The dog is big and fast," he said, "and would have torn to pieces any who attempted to lay a finger on her."

Mrs. Nichols, mother of a two-year-old child, was found by a passerby early Sunday lying unconscious and near death near a curb along an Evanston street. Her skull was fractured and her shoulder and elbows were bruised.

The police dog was near by growling.

Police, who released the husband, Richard W. Nichols, a research engineer, after submitting him to a lie detector test, said they were investigating two other possibilities in connection with her death.

One, and most plausible, they said, was that she had received her fatal injury in a fall down the basement stairway of her home approximately an hour before she went out supposedly to walk the dog around the block.

The second possibility was that she had been struck by a hit-run automobile driver.

An Evanston bus driver said he saw Mrs. Nichols doing a wild dance under a street light a few minutes before her body was found.

RFC WILL ASSIST UTILITY EXPANSION

Banks Agree To Help Agency Put System on Ready- for-War Basis.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(P)—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, agreed today to help finance a big utility development program.

Jones said Floyd Carlisle, a utility spokesman, had told him the industry might require as much as $250,000,000 of RFC loans.

The RFC chairman called the utility program "a definite indication that this administration does not intend to be unfair."

The expansion is designed for wartime needs.

"We expected co-operation between banks and the RFC," Jones said. "I have assurance from a number of the larger banks that they are not only willing but desire to co-operate."

ROME TEXTILE PLANT IS SOLD AND REOPENED

ROME, G., Nov. 2.—The textile plant formerly operated here by the Strain Manufacturing Company resumed operations today, following its purchase at public auction by A. D. Julliard & Company, of Delaware.

The mill had been closed since last Friday but was reopened on a temporary schedule, with two shifts a day employing a total of about 175 persons.

One of the oldest cotton mills in Rome, the plant, 18 tenant houses and several other small pieces of property, were sold to the Julliard firm for $42,000 plus $2,400 taxes because of default on a loan entered by the Strain company.

BABA CUTS VOYAGE TO RETURN TO BOB
'I Need Him More Than I Do My Sisters,' She Says.
 NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Princess Baba, the blond beauty from Borneo, arrived in town today, four days by train and 2,500 miles by air from the arms of her great grunting Romeo, Bob Gregory, and immediately decided this was too much.

 "I'm going back," she gasped, as soon as she had collected a crowd at the Grand Central station.
 The Princess said she had intended to go to London to visit her sisters and had her passport and ticket.
 But a whole series of telegrams from Bob proved too much.

 "I found I couldn't stand it," she said, with a sigh. "I need Bob more than I do my sisters."
 She said that she believed her mother, the Rane of Sarawak, had finally forgiven her for marrying Gregory. The last previously reported message from the Rane was in the form of a heart-felt wish that "some gorilla will break Gregory's neck."

CHESTER C. DAVIS SPEAKS NEXT WEEK
Federal Reserve Governor To Address Forum.
 Chester C. Davis, of Washington, member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, will speak at the Capital City Club, November 10, at a dinner-meeting sponsored by the forum committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Davis, considered an outstanding authority, will devote his talk to a discussion of business and governmental problems.
 Reservations for the dinner, which will be informal, may be made through the Chamber of Commerce. It will begin at 6:30 o'clock.

Dewey Holding Own in N. Y. Race; Few Thousand Votes To Be Margin
Republican Still Running Neck-and-Neck With Governor Lehman by Virtue of Heavy Upstate Support, Although Executive Is Given 1 Per Cent Lead.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
 (Copyright, 1938. All rights reserved.)
 NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—After a little less than four weeks of spectacular campaigning, Thomas E. Dewey is still running neck-and-neck with Governor Herbert H. Lehman in the contest for the governorship of New York state, according to the semi-final results of a state-wide survey by the Institute.

other hand, the survey points to a greater Republican sweep than the G. O. P. has enjoyed in many years. Dewey is now running 63 per cent in the survey upstate.

Dewey Lehman
 Upstate N. Y. 63% 37%
 New York City 35 65
 Lehman's support comes principally from voters in the younger age groups and voters with incomes below the average. In this respect his backing comes from the same type of people who support President Roosevelt.

The middle income group holds the balance of power in the state as in the nation. At the present time this middle group is almost evenly divided on Dewey and Lehman, with a slight preference for Dewey.

Dewey Lehman
 Upper Income Group 62% 38%
 Middle Income Group 52 48
 Lower Income Group 39 61
 President Roosevelt will wind up the Lehman campaign with a speech Friday night. Will his address switch votes? In a race as close as this one it might have a decisive influence, particularly in the middle income group which is so evenly divided in sentiment.

Wagner Running Well.
 Senator Robert F. Wagner is running well ahead in his campaign for re-election. He leads nearly 3 to 2 at this time over his Republican opponent, John Lord O'Brien.

But Democrat James M. Mead who is running for the senate seat vacated by the death of Senator Royal Copeland is facing a close contest with Edward Corsi, Republican. At the present time the two candidates are running about even, with Mead slightly in the lead.

NEW RIGID AIRSHIP PLANNED BY NAVY

Lighter-Than-Air Craft To Be 325 Feet Long.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Navy announced plans today for a new rigid airship, 325 feet long and of 1,000,000 cubic feet gas capacity.

The lighter-than-air craft will be built by a private contractor under a $3,000,000 appropriation of the last congress for an American-made experimental airship. Details of the plans were not made public and the date for opening bids was not announced.

The Navy has had no rigid airships in operation since the Macon crashed into the sea off California in 1935. The airship Los Angeles is still owned by the Navy in decommissioned status.

PROBERS TO CLOSE PRE-ELECTION QUIZ

Agent in Georgia, One of Eight, To Report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee began to wind up its pre-election inquiries today by calling for reports from its agents in eight states.

The states are Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Illinois, Georgia, North Dakota, Kentucky and Tennessee. Various candidates have filed a wide variety of complaints about the conduct of their opponents' campaigns.

Senator White, Republican, Maine, suggested that after the committee's sessions today and tomorrow it issue no more statements before the election.

LEGISLATORS STUDY STATE FUND TANGLE AS SESSION NEARS

Brooks' Assertion That New Taxes Will Be Necessary Is Scanned.

By The Associated Press.
Incoming Georgia legislators yesterday pondered a college dean's observation that the alternative for new taxes would be "a fatal curtailment" of the state's program of services.

Dean R. P. Brooks, of the University of Georgia School of Commerce, told cost accountants that Governor Rivers would "of course, feel reluctant to advocate new taxes," adding "and yet, something must be done."

Brooks' discussion also revived talk that the assembly meeting January 9 may be asked to act on sales tax proposals and plans to change the local option liquor control act to a state store law.

State Store Yield.
Students of state store liquor laws were inclined to agree with the dean's estimate such a plan would yield $2,500,000 additional revenue, or about $4,000,000 annually.

While he estimated a sales tax yield at $10,000,000, some fiscal experts said $8,000,000 would be the top for a two per cent levy, after certain expected exemptions were deducted from annual retail sales of $500,000,000 reported for Georgia.

Citing budget restrictions limiting state departments to 65 per cent of appropriations at present, Dean Brooks said "indeed, the program is already falling down. In a number of cases the large increase of appropriations was not actually met."

Bill Termed "Correct."
(A belief that the present appropriations bill is "95 per cent correct" and a hope that it be continued in effect as it was expressed recently by State Auditor Zach Arnold, member of the budget commission.)

While legislators talked over the task facing them, observers recalled that an effort was made at the State Democratic convention to inject a "no more taxation" plank in the convention platform. The effort failed.

Blaming the state's financial difficulties upon the practice of allocating certain tax yields to specific purposes, Brooks proposed paying for state services as needed from a common tax income fund. Under the present dual system, approximately 60 per cent of Georgia's revenue is allocated and the remaining 40 per cent appropriated.

OFFICERS CHOSEN FOR STAFF SCHOOL

17 From Army, 6 Georgians To Take Course.

Selection of six native Georgians and 17 other army officers now stationed in the state as students for the 1938-1940 session of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., was announced yesterday by fourth corps area headquarters here.

Georgians named were Captain Thomas W. Brinkley, of Warrenton, and Captain Walter D. Rife, of Nashville, both infantry; Captain Charles L. Dasher Jr., of Savannah, and Captain Hugh D. Elliott, of Atlanta, both field artillery; First Lieutenant Reuben C. Hood Jr., of Atlanta, air corps, and Major Talley D. Joiner, of Seneca, connected with the adjutant general's department.

Listed army officers stationed in the state were Major Henry V. Dexter, Captain Richard C. Bobbitt, Thomas D. Drake, Oliver W. Hughes, Frank R. Loyd, Oliver P. Newman, Alex D. Reid, Thomas N. Stark and Ovid O. Wilson, infantry, stationed at Fort Benning; Captain James Halverston, infantry, Fort McPherson; Captain Logan C. Perry, Thomas T. Thornburgh and William K. Withers, cavalry, Fort Oglethorpe; Captains Stephens R. Kozlowski, of Savannah, and Edmund W. Seabury, Fort Benning, both field artillery; Captain Ernest D. Linton, Fort Benning, medical corps, and First Lieutenant Joseph M. Colby, ordnance department, Fort Benning.

FLOYD HAMILTON, PAL MAY PLEAD GUILTY

FORT SMITH, Ark., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Assistant United States Attorney Duke Frederick said today that two outlaws, Floyd Hamilton and Ted Walters, had indicated they would plead guilty at arraignment here tomorrow on charges of robbing the Bank of Bradley of $600.15 last June 7 and of transporting stolen cars across state lines in fleeing from officers.

Both are under sentence in Texas on robbery charges.

Dick Russell Observes Birthday By Working at Home in Winder

Georgia's No. 1 Bachelor and Junior U. S. Senator Is 41 Years Old; Says He Is Going To Forget About Future Anniversaries.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Georgia's No. 1 bachelor, United States Senator Russell, was 41 years old yesterday.

But that birthday was to end all birthdays according to the junior senator. From now on he is going to forget all about them. He said:

"Why think about them? Time passes fast enough as it is. When I was younger, they were about the biggest day of the year. Years ago I tried to be older. Now I am going to be younger each year."

There was no special observance of his birthday at his home in Winder, Senator Russell said last night.

"Just the usual thing, work in the morning, then lunch and then more work. Of course mother had a cake for me. She always has one for each of us on our birthdays. It was chocolate, too. She knows my favorite. There also were a number of cards and wires from friends who remembered the date."

There was only Chief Justice Richard B. Russell Jr. and Mrs. Russell, and Robert and Alex Russell to enjoy the birthday feast with the youthful senator at their Winder home last night. Other members of the family are living in various sections.

Here are a few off-the-political-record characteristics of Dick Russell:

He is an ardent radio fan and listens to all the programs he can. He is left-handed when playing two-handed games, such as baseball and golf.

He likes to travel and when time permits he goes hunting.

He has taught the chef at the United States senate restaurant in Washington to cook black-eyed peas in true southern style.

He has no official hostess for social affairs while in Washington. And he says "no comment" when the question of matrimony is mentioned.

ATLANTA GIRL HEADS COLLEGE DELEGATION

Miss Henrietta Green, of Atlanta, a student at the University of Georgia Evening College, and president of the Georgia Collegiate Press Association, headed a delegation of Georgia college representatives who left yesterday to attend a convention of the Associated Collegiate Press in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In the party were representatives from the University of Georgia, Emory University, Georgia State Woman's College at Valdosta, and G. S. C. W. at Milledgeville.

Nearly a thousand native Texas plants have been collected to form the proposed Big Bend National park.

5 ARABS FACE DEATH FOR CARRYING ARMS

13 Killed, 6 Wounded in Clashes With British Troops.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 2.—(P)—Five Arabs were sentenced to death by a British military court today for carrying rifles and ammunition in revolt against British rule of the Holy Land. British troops clashed with Arabs in two engagements. Thirteen Arabs were reported killed, and six wounded.

The five sentenced to die were arrested with three others, who were acquitted, by a Scottish black watch patrol October 10.

ELLSWORTH SAILS ON 4TH EXPEDITION

Decks of Wyatt Earp Almost Covered by Oil Drums and Ship's Plane.

By LINCOLN ELLSWORTH, Leader, Fourth Ellsworth Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) ABOARD THE MOTOR SHIP WYATT EARP, BOUND FOR THE ANTARCTIC, Nov. 2.—(By Wire)—With her decks almost covered with drums of fuel oil and the little Aeronca scouting plane fastened to the hatch, my ship, the Wyatt Earp, is four days out of Cape Town.

The Crozet Islands will be the first land sighted some two weeks hence, but unless the seas and weather are clear and calm a landing will not be made until we reach Kerguelen Island, where the deckload of fuel will be pumped into the ship's bunkers and the decks cleared for the encounter with the heavy seas further south.

It will probably be at least a month more before the ship can force her way to the edge of the Antarctic continent at the Enderby land sector, where I will carry out by airplane a geographical reconnaissance of the side of the Antarctic opposite the Ross sea.

With the exception of a sketchy outline of the coast, this area is entirely unknown, and the results of this, my fourth expedition to the Antarctic, will prove whether the eastern half of the continent is a continuation of the high plateau known to exist at the South Pole or whether it is in-

BUCK CAREER BEGUN BY HISTORY BOOK

Christmas Present When Animal Expert Was 12 Launched Life Work.

A Texas boy, bent on capturing alive all the wild creatures in his neighborhood, Frank Buck, age 12, was given a copy of Wood's Natural History for a Christmas present, and then there began "Em Back Alive" Frank Buck came into being.

Riding to Chicago on a cattle train, young Buck got a job as bellhop. Haunting zoos and attending biology lectures at night, Frank, age 19, wangled a trip to Brazil through a friendly hotel guest. He returned from Brazil with a collection of tropical birds, which he sold at a profit. His career had begun. Singapore called. Africa spoke. Malaysia beckoned again and again.

Then the magazines, books, the movies, until "Em Back Alive" Frank Buck, the world's most famous big game hunter, who never wantonly shot a living creature, caps his amazingly adventurous and glamorous career as the biggest name feature of the big show, the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto combined circus coming to Highland avenue, Atlanta, Sunday to exhibit Monday and Tuesday. The Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto organization, now augmented by Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey features is today the largest tented enterprise on tour. With Gargantua the Great, the giant gorilla, 450 circus champions, five herds of elephants, 400 horses, scores of new novelties and 837 menagerie animals, the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto combined circus will give performances at 2 and 8 o'clock daily, the doors opening one hour earlier.

ATLANTAN, WIFE HURT IN CRASH

Illinois Autoist and Companion Also Injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Knight, of 45 Ada avenue, N. W., were injured last night when their automobile collided near Barnesville with an Illinois automobile.

The two Atlantans were taken to Strickland hospital in Griffin. Extent of their injuries was not learned. Driver of the other machine, listed as Roy Harrington, and a companion also were injured. The accident occurred about seven miles from Barnesville on the highway to Fort Valley.

'Bring Back Waltz' Contest in Full Swing

Gracefully tripping the measure of the waltz, Miss Patsy Didschuneit and Bill Blackstone are shown as The Constitution's "Bring Back the Waltz" contest was in full swing last night at the Henry Grady hotel.

H.H. THOMPSON, WIFE WIN WALTZ CONTEST

Couple Will Appear in Zone Finals, Get Chance for Movies.

By LILLIE MAE ROBINSON.

The waltz, which has come down through history and has survived the new-fangled muscular maneuvers, was revived last night with all its rhythm in the Spanish Room of the Henry Grady hotel, where more than 60 couples competed in The Constitution's "Bring Back the Waltz" Contest.

First prize, $25 in cash and the honor of competing December 1 in the state finals, was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Thompson. In the state finals Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will meet couples from other cities of Georgia, from which one couple will be selected for the zone finals, to be held later the same night. The ultimate prize will be a three-month contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Hollywood, this to be awarded in New York to the couple selected as best in a contest of zone winners. Second prize, $15 in cash, was won by Miss Doris Jean Golden and Reynolds Clark.

Last night's entertainment opened with a grand march led by Mrs. E. D. Rivers, the state's first lady, and her son, E. D. Rivers Jr., in the absence of the Governor from the city. Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Bartlett, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson and J. W. Setze Jr. followed the first lady and her son in the march.

Emil Velazco and his orchestra played waltz numbers exclusively, throughout the evening.

The enthusiasm evidenced by the contestants and the audience left no doubt that the waltz is the Great American Dance, despite the European, South American and Harlem steps. The music of Strauss and Victor Herbert proved its immortality. The rhythm and grace of the dancers was contagious. It proved beyond a doubt that the waltz is here to stay.

In co-operating with the national "Bring Back the Waltz" contest, M-G-M has produced "The Great Waltz," starring Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and Miliza Kainer. During the festivities a telegram was received from the trio congratulating The Constitution on its successful effort.

Between now and the New York finals to decide the best waltz team in the United States, 7,000 co-operating bands and orchestras will feature waltz time music on the air and in ballrooms and night clubs throughout the nation.

BOARD DISMISSES MISSING FIREMAN

Acts After Disclosing He Left Debts Totalling About $1,300.

Fire Captain H. A. Ewing, veteran "flame-eater" who was charged with abandoning his post, was discharged last night by the board of firemasters at a busy session which disclosed a fight between the city and county as to which will name the personnel of the joint Lakewood fire station, and saw an effort made to reinstate E. C. DeFoor, fireman, who was allowed to resign last July while being tried for drunkenness.

Three new captains and three new lieutenants were elected as nine more firemen were put on the rolls.

Owed $1,300. Though Captain Ewing, who was in charge of one shift at Station No. 3, until October 20, when he disappeared, did not show up, the firemasters went through a trial and found him guilty of abandoning his post, diverting to his own use $18 of money paid him by men in the house, and of non-payment of debts amounting to approximately $1,300.

All except Councilman Howard Haire voted to discharge Ewing after a parade of witnesses had testified the captain drew his pay on October 20 but slipped out the back door with a hose lower while several men waited in the front of the station to collect money they said he owed them. They asserted they had made every effort to locate the captain since he failed to show up for work October 21—but without success.

No Reason Ascribed. None ascribed any reason for the captain disappearing without notifying them or his relatives of his whereabouts.

Captain Ewing had been living at the fire station since August, the firemasters were told, and had moved a chest of drawers to the station to hold his clothing. He took his clothes when he left, the firemen testified.

His wife, from whom he was separated, told the firemen she had no idea where Captain Ewing was, they said.

Should the captain reappear within 10 days, he could, under the law, receive a hearing from the board. Councilman John T. Marler, chairman, said.

"Stinks to Heaven." Alderman J. Gloer Hailey, Councilman Haire and Councilman William T. Knight led the bloc which sought to reinstate DeFoor, who Chief O. J. Parker said had been haled before the board three times on drinking charges, including the last one when he resigned before the board passed sentence on him after voting to find him guilty.

"This stinks to high heaven," said Councilman C. M. Bolen of the attempt by Hailey and the others to allow DeFoor to withdraw his resignation because he said it was "given under a misapprehension." Bolen said there was no misapprehension when the resignation was written.

Councilman Knight, after the board had argued long, said DeFoor had asked him to withdraw the matter if it appeared to have no chance of passage. It was withdrawn.

Hailey asserted the county commissioners "seem determined" to name four men of the personnel of the Lakewood Heights station and said he had told the commissioners in session yesterday that the law required the city to name the personnel, because all men are carried on the city's pay rolls and come under its civil service provisions.

Those Elected. After electing Lieutenant M. H. Sullivan to succeed Ewing as captain at No. 3, the board elected Lieutenant L. O. Laney and Lieutenant E. H. Freeman as captains of the new station when it opens in January. It then pushed up nine supernumerary firemen to the regular list effective the date the Lakewood station begins operations.

Four men slated by the county commission to hold jobs at the station were ignored.

N. T. Baker, F. N. Bibb and J. B. McDaniel, privates, were elevated to succeed the three lieutenants who were promoted. T. H. Stallworth was named driver for No. 11, and O. D. Cook and G. G. Hitchcock were named drivers for Lakewood.

HOW TO AVOID BALDNESS

Watch these danger zones

DEFINITE warning signals always precede baldness. When your scalp itches or is laden with dandruff, and when your hair falls abnormally in the "danger zones" (forehead and crown) you are being warned that baldness is approaching. You must act at once if you wish to avoid baldness.

Do what a quarter-million other men have done—consult Thomas. Thomas treatment is proved by almost two decades of success—is reliable, dignified, and inexpensive. It ends dandruff, stops abnormal hair loss, and promotes hair growth on the thin and bald spots. Call today for a complete scalp examination. No charge is made for the examination nor for consultation and if you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment you will be promptly told.

BLANTON AND 3 SONS ASSOCIATED IN LAW

Former Representative Tom Blanton has returned to Abilene, Texas, to open a law office with his three sons after a 20-year service in congress and a two-year practice of law in Washington. Blanton, famed as an opponent of reds in the District of Columbia, was defeated in the campaign for congress as representative of this district. His successor was Clyde Garrett, of Eastland, who was re-nominated without opposition in the Democratic primary.

The three Blanton sons are Tom Jr., Matthews and William. Law offices will be maintained in Abilene, Albany, Texas, and Washington. The firm name is Blanton & Blanton.

CANADA BOTHERED BY ROYAL HOUSING

Official Residences Abolished, King, Queen May Sleep on Train.

Special to The Constitution.
TORONTO, Nov. 2.—When King George and Queen Elizabeth visit Canada next May the problem of finding accommodations fitting for them and their large retinue promises to be a vexing one. Since three of the provinces—Ontario, New Brunswick and Alberta—have abandoned their government houses, official residences of their lieutenant governors, the King and Queen are expected to remain aboard their private train while at Toronto, Fredericton and Edmonton.

This expression has already drawn down upon the head of Premier Mitchell Hepburn wrathful criticism in Ontario, a province which prides itself on being second to none in its loyalty to the crown.

Assertions that the King and Queen will be forced to pass their nights among the whistlings of locomotives and the shunting of box cars in the Toronto terminal yards have been shouted from public platforms.

Peachtree Memorial Park Area Is Increased

Fulton county commissioners yesterday accepted a gift of about 15 additional acres to be added to the Peachtree Battle Memorial Park area. Meredith Collier, left, is delivering the deed to J. A. Ragsdale, chairman of the Fulton county commission, as Dr. T. J. Collier, center, looks on. Heirs of the Collier estate made the contribution.

15 Acres of Land on the Tanyard Creek Given by Collier Brothers.

Another addition to the Peachtree Battle Memorial Park was acquired yesterday when Dr. T. J. Collier and his brother, Meredith Collier, representing the Collier estate, deeded about 15 acres of land lying on both sides of Tanyard creek and extending southward from Collier road to the Seaboard railroad.

Fulton county commissioners accepted the deed. There were intimations that WPA and other federal agencies will co-operate to make the strip conform to other tracts already included as a part of the memorial. It will be beautified and sodded.

After the commission voted to accept the land, J. A. Ragsdale, commission chairman, and Troy Chastain, chairman of the building and grounds committee of the commission, praised the "public spirit which prompted this addition to the Fulton county park system."

Walter C. Hendrix, chairman of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce committee, and Ivan Allen, committee member, aided heirs of the Collier estate in determining just what portions of the property were actual battlefield areas.

The property donated yesterday is an authentic part of the battlefield, and lies south of the Bobby Jones golf course.

ernor Rivers plans a change in the chairmanship of the state highway board, that Miller is to be shifted to the post of state director of public welfare and Gillis is to be made highway chairman.

Simultaneously with the arrival of Rivers and Gillis, District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp came from Atlanta. Camp ran an unsuccessful race for the senate in Georgia this year, having been the New Deal candidate. Since the primary it has been reported that the Governor, Gillis and Camp are to be formed into a "committee" to administer federal patronage in Georgia.

In connection with the presence of the three in Washington today there were reports that there may be a change in assistant works progress administrators in Georgia where R. L. MacDougall now holds forth. It was said here that MacDougall recently tendered his resignation only to withdraw it before it was acted on. No member of the Georgia party would discuss this phase of the situation, and both WPA Administrator Hopkins and his assistant, Aubrey Williams, are out of the city.

As assistant to Miss Gay B. Shepperson in Atlanta, MacDougall is chief engineer of the WPA and in charge of the WPA road building program, a large part of which is now being conducted in conjunction with the highway board.

If a change is to be made it is understood that Miss Shepperson's new assistant will be Warren Neel, of Atlanta, at present director of the state highway department's post road division.

From statements made by officials here and in Atlanta, Georgia's highway fund situation was given as follows:

The state has approximately $10,500,000 over-all state funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935, and ending June 30, 1936.

The board also has available $3,250,000 in regular federal aid funds which must be matched, providing a total of $6,500,000 for construction of federal aid highways.

Approximately $3,000,000 of the balance remaining after regular federal aid is matched goes to the counties for county road work. This cannot be used to match any federal funds because the federal government prohibits the use of its funds on projects where convicts are worked.

The highway department then uses $2,500,000 for maintenance, and while federal funds might be used in this connection none, thus far has been so allocated.

regular federal aid, $3,000,000 for the counties and $2,500,000 used for maintenance of the highway department there is only about $1,750,000 left for administration of the department and for state aid roads, on which the PWA money could be used.

In addition the federal government has appropriated about $2,000,000 for grade-crossing eliminations but this does not have to be matched and therefore does not figure in the highway board's financial problems.

What plan the Governor may be able to work out to salvage any portion of the PWA money could not be learned tonight.

He again refused to discuss a possible change in the highway board.

"I am here to work out the best thing I can for the people of the state, and do not wish to discuss personnel," Rivers said.

Governor Rivers said he planned to leave here tomorrow for Dawson, Ga., where he will participate in a festival Friday. From Dawson he will go to Jacksonville for the football team Saturday, returning to Atlanta Monday.

BOND OPENS NEW ATLANTA STORE THIS MORNING

Chamber of Commerce President Will Greet Heads of Clothing Firm in Public Ceremonies

Attractive Display Windows, Broad Frontage On Peachtree Center of Much Attention

The latest addition to Atlanta's steadily growing list of new downtown stores, the completely remodeled home of Bond Clothes at 45 Peachtree street, will be officially opened to the public at 8:45 o'clock this morning.

C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will have the principal role in the brief ceremonies and will cut a ribbon stretched across the handsomely wrought bronze and plate glass doors.

The building, said to be one of the most beautiful in the city, has a facade of black and white marble above the display windows which are of the cathedral type. The floors of both the lobby and the windows are of Italian terrazzo with the words "Bond Clothes" in bronze embedded at the entrance.

Men's furnishings, and the hat and clothing departments will be located on the ground floor which has more than 3,000 square feet of selling space. The front is 33 feet wide and the display windows are 40 feet deep.

The floor throughout the building has an especially designed covering in a striking individual pattern of orange, gray and black.

At the left of the entrance there is a broad and imposing marble staircase which leads to the mezzanine where the stores' offices and additional dressing rooms are located.

In order to assure perfect comfort for customers, the building is completely air-conditioned and is equipped with an overhead lighting system which gives a soft, diffused light of the best type obtainable.

Floorcases are made of American walnut and bronze and the same materials are used throughout for woodwork, paneling and other interior decorating effects.

Construction of the building was handled by local contractors working under the supervision of J. P. Connolly, of the American Store Equipment Company.

Completely stocked with the latest styles in men's clothes, the "regular sizes" will be on the second floor. Officials claim that the "irregular sizes" will make it possible to fit a man of any height, weight and size with a minimum of special tailoring and alterations.

The second floor also will house the "students' department," one of the most attractive in the store, where the newest in collegiate apparel will be stocked. Pennants, banners and college streamers are used as decorations to add to the collegiate atmosphere and magazines will be available for all customers. The floor contains approximately 3,500 square feet, sufficient for a year's round stock of 6,000 garments.

One of the most modern tailor shops in the city adjoins the student department. It has a high ceiling, large skylights and a window 25 feet by 15 feet which floods the room with daylight.

A system to facilitate the handling of alterations and speed up deliveries of finished garments has been installed by Joseph Beall, who will be in charge of the department as head tailor and fitter.

Virtually the entire personnel of the Atlanta Bond unit is made up of local men and women who are well known in the Atlanta trade territory. Heading the list are N. Gould, manager, and Joseph A. Loewinson, assistant manager.

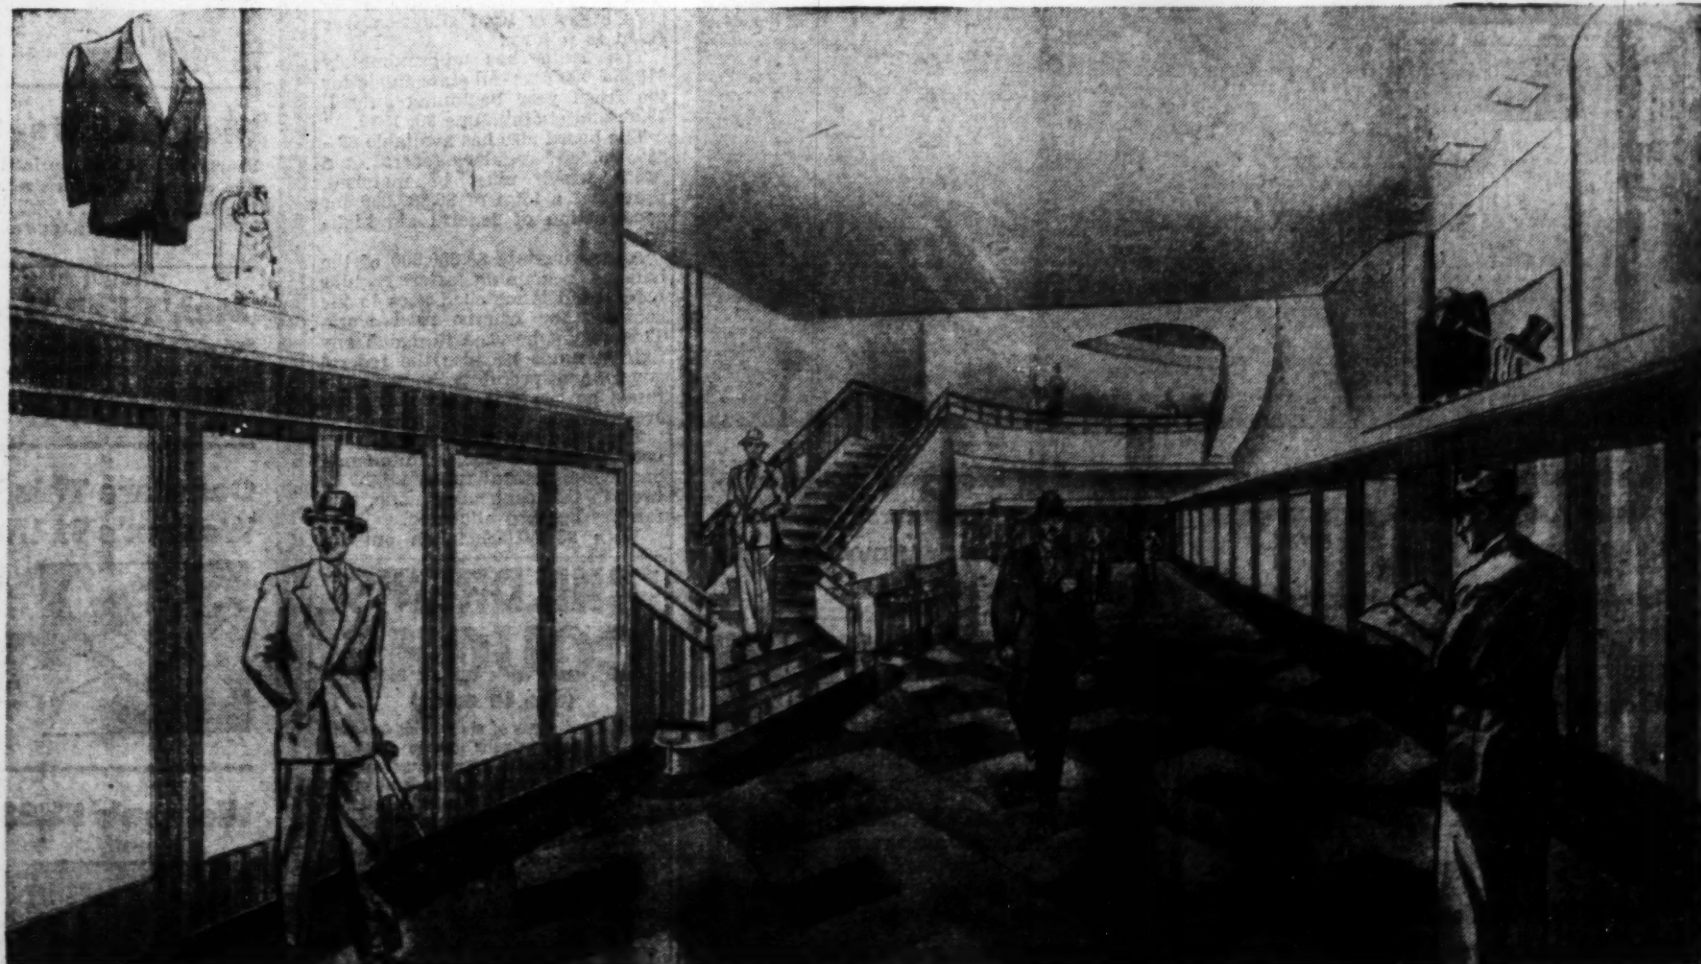

In the furnishings department, Ray Hollingsworth, manager, will be assisted by Toy H. Warr, George W. Price and Al Mabry. Credit Manager E. M. Van Leer will have Mrs. M. L. Boyd, Miss G. W. Price and Mrs. E. M. Embry as assistants.

Hinton Newsome will head the college shop and Turner Avery will have charge of the shipping and receiving departments. Those on the sales staff include Carlos Wilson, Fred H. Eakin, Irving Flower, Blyce Yancey, Louis Adiger, H. J. Keith, Charles Mabry, Harvey Shivers, H. F. Wooten and George Hart. The Atlanta store is the 53d unit in the Bond organization.

BOND STORE OPENS THIS MORNING

As the doors to this new men's clothing store opens this morning at 8:45 o'clock, Atlantans will see a rare example of fine store architecture. With a 33-foot frontage, and window displays going back 40 feet; with lobby and window floors done in Italian terrazzo, doors of wrought bronze and plate glass, with facade of black and white marble.

A STRIKING COMBINATION OF BRONZE AND AMERICAN WALNUT

A picture of artistic beauty—air-conditioned throughout, with soft overhead lighting, is the first floor of the new Bond store. Hand-rubbed American walnut is used throughout on fixtures, floor cases and paneling, with bronze trimmings. The floor is in attractive pattern of bronze, gray and black, with imposing staircase of marble. Many other features which add to the convenience of customers are incorporated in the new store.

IN ATLANTA FOR THREE-DAY PARTY

J. W. Connors, vice president and general manager of Bond Stores, Inc., in Atlanta for the opening of the local Bond store, at 45 Peachtree street, N. E., is remaining for the three-day opening celebration today through Saturday.

NATIVE OF THE SOUTH

R. L. Bass, a native of Tennessee and district manager of Bond Stores, Inc., here for opening of Bond stores, Atlanta branch, 45 Peachtree street, N. E., which is one of the most attractive in the Bond group.

Congratulations From Prominent Out-of-Towners

Among the many messages of congratulations and greetings received by the officers of the new Bond Stores, opening this morning at 45 Peachtree street, N. E., was a letter from Robert W. Baxter, Mayor of Schenectady, N. Y.

Mayor Baxter, writing J. W. Connors, General Manager of Bond Stores, said:

"I extend greetings to you from the City of Schenectady and congratulations on the opening of a new Bond Clothing Store in Atlanta. Here in Schenectady we have always felt that the Bond Stores were a real asset to the business district. Their location has always been attractive and I am sure that their good faith in our city has been well supported by the buying public."

"I join with Mr. Francis Holland and his Schenectady Bond Clothing Associates in congratulating Atlanta and you for your latest Bond Store."

"With this letter go my heartfelt good wishes for success in your new venture."

Other Cities Say Bond Stores Are Good Neighbors

"Bond stores are good neighbors; your merchandise and price policy have attracted more business to our community from our entire trading area; your kind of competition is good and wholesome for all business here; your sincere interest in civic progress has been helpful; you have been delightful people with whom to do business."

That is, in part, a composite of congratulatory messages pouring in to Bond clothes stores executives from others of the nearly two score American cities in which their other 52 men's clothing stores are located, sent to Atlanta on the eve of the opening of the 53d Bond store at 45 Peachtree street today.

The messages come from banks and newspapers, trade associations and supply firms, contractors and employees in an imposing fanfare of good will from other cities where Bond stores have been established during their 30 years of consistent growth.

Banker Writes. "It is indeed gratifying and encouraging during this period of more or less disturbed times to see an organization such as

BOOK OF UNIVERSITY OFFERED READERS

Is Land or Water Area Greatest? Encyclopedia Will Answer.

Where is the International Date Line? What is the greatest ocean depth known and where is it? How far is the sun from the earth? Is the land area of the earth greater than the ocean area? Where is the lowest point in the world below sea level?

These and many other geographical questions are answered in "The Book of the Universe," an encyclopedia, atlas and gazetteer offered to The Constitution readers through the book bonus plan.

Everyone wants to be able to talk intelligently about various parts of the world. With international news holding much of the spotlight, a knowledge of geography and background information about the various nations become increasingly important. "The Book of the Universe" helps to provide that background.

And it's very easy to get. All you have to do is clip 24 consecutive numbered coupons from the daily Constitution and bring them to The Constitution with $1.29 for the cloth-bound edition or $1.99 for the deluxe edition. Or, if you can't come for your volume, you can send $1.45 for the regular edition or $2.15 for the deluxe edition, and it will be sent to you. The extra 16 cents is to cover the cost of mailing.

The collection of 24 coupons may start at any time, from the first one published or at any time during the campaign. One coupon appears each week day.

MIDWEST FACES SERIOUS DROUGHT; HEAT CONTINUES

Officials Feel Immediate Concern for Winter
Wheat Crop.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Threats of a serious drought took shape in the midwestern farm belt today.

The Weather Bureau at Washington, gauging the results of a warm and arid autumn, warned that "one of the most severe and widespread fall droughts on record" had developed in the broad area extending from the Appalachians to the Rocky Mountains. The object of immediate concern was the winter wheat crop.

Early seeded wheat was reported at a standstill and late-planted grain was described as deteriorating except in eastern Nebraska and the Texas Panhandle.

Citing October as one of the driest on record, the bureau advised the need for rain was urgent in many places and was required generally in the territory seared by the devastating droughts of 1934 and 1936.

The bureau said the only midwestern sections not affected were eastern Nebraska, southern Minnesota, northern Iowa and much of Wisconsin. Eastern New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle also escaped the threat while the grain crop was reported in fair condition in Kansas, the nation's major wheat-producing state.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said showers probably would fall in virtually all portions of the midwest within the next 24 hours.

The rain was expected to end a November warm wave.

Chicago, in the center of the high temperature belt, had a top of 76—an all-time record for so late in the season. Readings of more than 20 degrees above normal were registered at many other points.

C. M. Galvin, Chicago market expert, professed to see a decline in winter wheat prospects.

"Unless the present dry condition is relieved prior to the freeze-up," he reported, "abnormal winter-killing may follow, resulting in heavy abandonment and a relatively small acreage to be left for harvest when contrasted to that of last season."

N. Y., PENNSYLVANIA CRUCIAL STATES

Significant Test of New Deal Strength Will Come in Tuesday Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The nation's two most populous states, New York and Pennsylvania, where Democrats are fighting to hold domination against the most determined Republican assaults in several years, offer a significant and vital test of the New Deal strength.

As Tuesday's elections neared, indications pointed to close contests for pivotal positions. Local issues have been subordinated in Pennsylvania, where a "Little New Deal" was installed four years ago, and in New York, Roosevelt's state, where Republicans nominated Thomas E. Dewey and the Democrats drafted Governor Lehman. The President will make a radio appeal Friday for the election of the Democratic ticket.

Corruption Charged.
Dewey has charged corruption in Democratic-controlled cities. The Governor expressed pride in knowledge of finance and chided Dewey for "ignorance" and "inexperience."

New York will elect two to the senate, Senator Wagner, author of the Wagner labor act, seeks a third term against John Lord O'Brien, Buffalo attorney. O'Brien has attacked "inequities" of the act, and other New Deal legislation. Wagner has asked re-election as a staunch friend of labor and the New Deal.

Seeking the short term to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, are Representative James Mead, of Buffalo, and Republican Edward P. Cowl.

The New Deal issue is clearest in the 16th congressional district, where Representative O'Connor, purged in the Democratic primary but nominated by Republicans, is opposed by James H. Ray.

Bitterness has marked the Pennsylvania campaign. With Governor Earle, wealthy Philadelphia, seeking to defeat Senator James J. Davis, the Democratic hopes of holding the governorship rest on Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, Jones is pledged to continue the program on which Earle bases his bid.

Democrats Attacked.
Both Davis and Jones' opponent, Judge Arthur H. James, have maintained a running fire attack on Democratic rule.

In New Jersey, a senatorial contest provided the first test of strength of the Democratic organization of Frank Hague since the start of his controversy with the CIO. W. Warren Barbour, former Republican United States senator, in a comeback faces William H. J. Ely, state director of the WPA.

Only one precinct had failed to report in the 38 city voting places—Fifth ward, precinct "E."

That same precinct was missing from the county list from the city vote on county bonds. In addition,

Beauty and Peanuts Reign Together at Dawson's Southeastern Festival

Beauty spots in the parade yesterday at Dawson's Southeastern Peanut festival included these young women, atop one of the featured floats. Left to right: Miss Nell McLendon, Miss Carolyn Stevens and Miss Hilma Daniel. Miss Mary Herlovich, Preston, representative of Webster county, was crowned queen of the festival here last night, having been chosen by judges for the honor earlier in the day. Miss Eloise Christie, of Parrott, Terrell county representative, won second place.

Fulton High Students 'Cut' Classes To Aid City-County Bond Drive

A group of "five or six" pupils at the Fulton High school were scanning returns from the bond section probably more anxious than even the leaders of the bond campaign last night.

They had "cut" school to work for the bonds and they knew that if the issue went over at the polls, school authorities might feel more kindly in dealing with them.

Professor J. E. White, principal of the school, said that the undetermined number of students absent themselves after they had demanded a holiday and he had informed them that he could not grant it.

"A sizeable group of boys came to me during the noon recess and pointed out that city pupils had been granted a holiday to work for the bond issue," the principal said. "They asked me to suspend school for the afternoon in order that they might go home and help to get out the vote in their neighborhood."

The principal explained that holidays were authorized only by the board of education and County Superintendent Jere A. Wells and that he had no such authority.

"I saw that there was such a number interested that I summoned the entire student body to the auditorium immediately after the luncheon recess," Professor White said. "There I told the boys and girls that I was powerless to keep them in school if they were determined to leave but I pointed out that every student who absented himself would have to face the usual consequences."

The principal said that he had not completed a checkup last night on the students who turned up missing during the afternoon.

"There were five or six at the most," he said.

Professor White said that as far as he knew all of those who went out to campaign were boys.

not enough voters turning out. If they had turned out in sufficient numbers, I'm sure the bond issue would have passed to the satisfaction of all those who endorsed them."

Mayor's Statement.

Mayor Hartsfield also commented on the result of the election, saying:

"Although it is plainly evident that the overwhelming sentiment was for the bonds, as evidenced by the trend of the vote, still it is disheartening fact that enough Atlantans were not interested to the extent of simply doing their civic duty by voting one way or another."

"For my part, I would have rather seen a large vote of the majority of our citizens voting against the bonds than to see them lose by mere lack of interest. That at least would have been evidence of an active interest in government."

"I think the campaign committee and all who had a part in the well-managed and active campaign are to be congratulated. They did their job well."

"In the meantime we will carry on and try to give the people the best and most efficient service we can render within our financial means."

For two weeks one of the most vigorous campaigns in history has been waged in behalf of the bond program.

Teacher was ideal during the entire period.

Labor joined hands with capital and employers in sponsoring the campaign, and every faction and every group rallied to support the program.

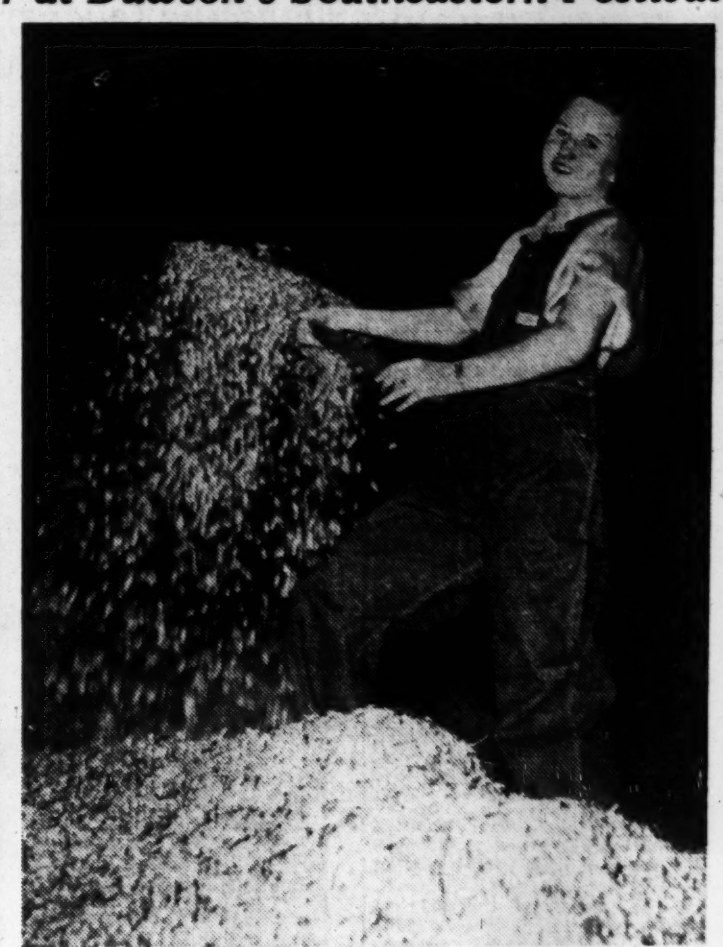

At 11 o'clock yesterday every school in Atlanta was closed and students and teachers rushed from the classrooms. Teachers began telephoning and a noticeable voting flurry was recorded. Students went home to urge their parents to vote.

All Work Together.
Women's clubs, civic organizations, business leaders and all worked shoulder to shoulder in what proponents of the issue had characterized "as the greatest opportunity Atlanta and Fulton county ever had at so cheap a price."

Hundreds of persons used their automobiles to carry their friends to the polls. The bond organization, under the direction of Legare Davis, kept in close touch with the voting and refused to be discouraged by reports of light balloting in the early morning hours.

The bond proponents banked heavily on the closing hour rush to push every one of the issues over the top.

LA GUARDIA TO BACK GOVERNOR LEHMAN

The Southeastern Peanut Festival could not be what it is without peanuts. So here is an attractive lass, Miss Elizabeth Chambliss, in the midst of them, making the goobers fly with the aid of a pitchfork. A feature of the festival was a gigantic parade. The float of the Stone Castle Chapter, of Dawson, Daughters of the American Revolution, won first place. Following the coronation a pageant was presented. The event, which opened Monday, will end Saturday.

'HIGH TOR' OPENS RUN AT ERLANGER

Capacity Crowd Welcomes
Opening of Federal Theater Season.

By LEE ROGERS.

Atlanta's Federal Players opened their fall season last night with the presentation of "High Tor," Maxwell Anderson's Broadway success. It was greeted by an audience which filled the Erlanger theater to capacity and which applauded roundly the scenery and lighting effects.

Morris Michael and John J. Williams, as the land sharks, provided the comedy that gave life to an otherwise dragging performance. These put enough into Anderson's fundamentally funny blank verse lines to bring laugh after laugh from the audience.

The story of "High Tor" concerns the trials of a hunter who refuses to sell the lands of his father's to a rock company, despite the entreaties of his girl. The land in question is haunted by a crew of Dutchmen who were lost from Hendrick Hudson's expedition. Here on rainy nights they play tennis, which legend says causes the lightning and thunder.

Clyde Waddell, as the old Dutch settler who is intrigued by the ways of the new generation, gives the best performance of his career in Atlanta, anyway. He gets more out of his lines than any of the other actors or actresses.

"High Tor" is the first Federal theater play to be given since the organization moved its headquarters to the Erlanger. It will continue through Saturday night.

The committee said the warning was a result of investigation of charges made by W. Warren Barbour, Republican nominee.

After that, guests entering other functions were quietly requested not to smoke while Hitler was present. His attitude is that what anybody eats or drinks does not disturb the digestion or nose of others, but that smoking does and that nobody should indulge in a habit which makes others uncomfortable.

As is natural for an abstainer from alcohol, Hitler is fond of candy, bonbons, cakes and French pastry and the gooiest of chocolate eclairs. He indulges liberally in chocolate, taking several cups before going to bed between 2 and 3 in the morning. On the border-line of meat, are eggs and caviar in his diet. Carrots, spinach and mushrooms are the favorite vegetables prepared by special cooks, and the coffee is strong enough to satisfy the most confirmed addict. The list may lack in variety, but it is nourishing and healthful.

Sleeps to Noon.
When occasion permits, which is not often, Hitler can sleep until noon or later. Those close to him say that, though he works until night's almost gone, he like many hard-struck persons, he cannot sleep peacefully until daylight comes.

Hitler was ambitious to be an artist, but the judges rejected his paintings. Movies are included in his artistic field, and his official residence has a private auditorium. As in music and food, his taste in pictures is more pronounced than varied. He made eight requests for "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" in multi-color, and sat out that many showings in his private theater.

Hitler is a total abstainer, noticeable in a country where beer is as much a part of the ordinary meal as water is in other countries. Nor does he eat meat. Some explain that he is a teetotaler from unpleasant experiences in childhood, but that does not explain his aversion to meat, which was a rare treat in his humble home. More than that, his abstinence is not a moral conviction which sees sin in either alcohol or flesh. It is purely a judgment of palate or stomach, like not savoring raw oysters or peaches. If others care for them, that is not his affair. An assortment to tempt all appetites will be on the boards where he is host.

No Smoking.
Smoking is in another category. Hitler does not smoke nor will he tolerate it in his presence. At one official function, a uniformed guest pulled out his case and offered cigarettes to a few around him. After that, guests entering other functions were quietly requested not to smoke while Hitler was present. LA GUARDIA TO BACK GOVERNOR LEHMAN

N. Y. Times Says Executive's
Headquarters Does Not Know of Decision.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Fiorello H. La Guardia, New York city's Republican-fusion mayor, has decided to support Democratic Governor Lehman for re-election instead of the Republican nominee, Thomas E. Dewey, the New York Times says it learned tonight.

So closely has the mayor kept his decision, the Times says, not even Lehman's headquarters knew his choice.

As late as last Monday the mayor refrained from appearing with the Governor at an American Labor party rally in Madison Square Garden, saying that was busy at work on a speech endorsing Democratic Senator Wagner.

One factor in La Guardia's decision, the Times says it learned, was that advisers of District Attorney Dewey, who was La Guardia's running mate on Republican, Fusion and American Labor Party tickets last year, had instructed him not to mention the mayor by name in campaign speeches.

On a visit to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park October 21, the mayor indicated that he would not support any candidate who did not voice "firm approval" of the New Deal.

Since that time, Governor Lehman frequently has urged the election of congressmen and senators to uphold the program of President Roosevelt.

LEHMAN'S UTILITY RECORD ATTACKED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(UP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for Governor, charged tonight that the public utility record of Governor Herbert H. Lehman's administration "is one of laws passed and failure of enforcement."

"The astonishing fact today," he said, "is that New York is one of the nine most backward states of America in getting cheap electricity for its people."

"There is something wrong in the state of New York when people in other cities throughout the nation can buy more for less money. There is something wrong that needs curing."

NAZIS REVEALING ARMED STRENGTH AS SECRECY ENDS

Surprising Lack of Discretion Laid to Three Possible Reasons.

(Copyright, 1938, by New York Tribune, Inc.)
BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The Germans have burst forth with a surprising lack of discretion concerning the strength of their armaments. No new figures have been disclosed, it is true, but the implications are interesting enough in themselves.

There are three guesses as to the reasons behind this change of attitude on the part of the German propaganda machine. It may be ascribed to a desire to frighten Germany's "enemies" or to impress the German public with a sense of governmental efficiency. On the other hand, it may be due merely to a simple urge for exhibitionism after a long period of silence on military preparations.

Western Fortifications.
The initial move was made by "Der Angriff," the organ of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, early in the week. The paper came forward with a long descriptive article on the German fortifications on the western frontier.

On the following day there was a German radio broadcast of an interview with Major von Wedel, head of the army press department, on the military occupation of the Sudetenland.

Czech Invasion.
Stressing Germany's preparedness for action, the major declared 10 army corps with approximately 30 divisions marched into the territories involved, about half of which were motorized or consisted of "armored units." He significantly added that "troops of no less strength" were kept in reserve.

This may be interpreted to mean that about 60 divisions would have been ready for action, if required (the peace strength of a division of the German army is 12,000 men; its war strength is 15,000 men). According to officials the German conscript army consisted of 36 divisions before the annexation of Austria. After the Anschluss 18 army corps of three divisions each were mentioned.

RUMANIA TO BOW TO NAZIS—DURANTY.
(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
BUCHAREST, Nov. 2.—(By Wire)—It is quite likely that relations between Rumania and Germany will be friendly enough in the future.

Of course, if Rumania tries to buck the German tiger then that ferocious animal will use its teeth and claws. But the Rumanians are not stupid and they recognize two factors which had somewhat escaped foreign notice in the exciting days, when many people expect Germany to go ramping like a bull across south-central Europe.

The first factor is that Rumania and Germany are natural commercial complements by the laws of geography and economics. Rumania has oil, grain, bauxite, lumber and livestock, which Germany needs. Germany has machines, equipment and organization, which Rumania requires for its own development.

In the second place, Rumanian trade has been diverted from Germany partly by the artificially high rates fixed for the Rumanian currency, and partly by a deliberate intention produced by French political influence, which was formerly so great here. The result has been that Rumania's three largest commercial interests, grain, oil and lumber, have been seriously depressed. Which the Germans did not fail to observe.

Because it was a cold night, Lawson put the pups and Minnie, a German shepherd, in the house before he went to his job on a Washington newspaper late at night.

At 4:30 a. m., Mrs. Lawson was awakened by Minnie's barks and found the house in flames. She said the dog was pulling at Leaven's crib, ignoring her pups beneath it.

Mrs. Lawson snatched up the child and ran from the house, followed by Minnie. She said the dog then tried to return to the puppies, but she prevented her.

CABINET MEMBERS JOIN IN CAMPAIGN

Farley, Wallace, Roper
Take Stump To Aid
New Deal.

By The Associated Press.
Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, saw the specter of dictatorship in New Deal policies and Chairman Farley, of the Democratic national committee, denounced such arguments as "silly" last night in separate campaign speeches.

Meanwhile, Secretary Roper urged Indians to vote for Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Democrat, who opposed the administration's supreme court reorganization bill, and at one time was threatened with rejection by his state party organization as a result.

And, another cabinet member, Secretary Wallace returned to the campaign battles with a statement asserting that Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, who voted for last session's crop control bill had deserted the farmer for the Republican party by now denouncing the measure and urging the defeat of Senator McGill, Democrat, Kansas.

In another statement, Wallace made a similar charge of deserting the farmer against Lester J. Dickinson, Republican candidate against Senator Guy Gillette, Democrat, Iowa.

Vandenberg spoke at Newark, N. J., in behalf of W. Warren Barbour, Republican nominee for the senate from New Jersey. He asserted that unprecedented powers had been given to President Roosevelt, and said:

"The germ of centralized dictation permeates business as well as

Farley, speaking at Hartford, Conn., praised the New Deal's record and objectives and warned that "if we turn back a small part of the way, the old guard will be back in the saddle seeking to uproot and destroy the splendid accomplishments of the last five and a half years."

CARSTAIRS

created for "The Man who Cares"

WHO IS "THE MAN WHO CARES"? Well, take your friend Ed Stafford,* for example. You like to go to his house, for you know you will be well entertained. His cigars may not be the most expensive, but they will be good. His silverware may not be ornate, but it will be in excellent taste.

Whatever Ed serves in meat or drink you will enjoy with confidence and relish. You can't remember ever having had indigestion after a meal at Ed's.

Stafford is not a rich man, as you know. But he has found it is both pleasant and profitable to seek, within his means, the better things of living. It helps him in the opinion of others. And, what's more, it helps him in his own good opinion of himself. Stafford is a "man who cares".

Thomas Carstairs, so goes the family tradition, was a distinguished architect in Colonial days; a man of high attainments, and a gracious host, he became the friend of Washington, Jefferson and other notables; in 1788, Carstairs' talent for hospitality led him to open an establishment in Philadelphia, for purveying spirituous liquors to "men who cared."

Since Thomas Carstairs' time, generation after generation of his family have carried on his high traditions.

The Carstairs Whiskey at your neighborhood store today keeps faith with the time-honored Carstairs standards. A superbly balanced blend of fine whiskies, every one of them 4 or more years old. Carstairs is rich and full in flavor; yet exceptionally light in body. You may drink or serve it always with confidence and relish.

*The name "Ed Stafford" is not intended to refer to any specific individual; but merely to a type; the type of "man who cares".

SLAIN CHIEF'S BODY NOT TO BE EXHUMED

Recovery of Bullet Unnecessary, Butts Sheriff Asserts.

JACKSON, Ga., Nov. 2.—(P)—Sheriff G. T. Thurston, of Butts county, said today officials had abandoned a plan to exhume the body of C. T. Thornton, Jackson police chief, shot to death last week when he attempted to arrest three negroes.

He said state attorneys had decided it was unnecessary to have the bullet that killed the police chief, "since we have a .32-caliber pistol, fired once, and two negroes under arrest are both claiming it."

Sheriff Thurston said those charged with the slaying and held in the Fulton county jail in Atlanta were Charles Rucker, 28; Raymond Carter, 23, and Jim Williams.

"Williams and Rucker both claim ownership of a .32-caliber pistol, held in a vault at Griffin," the sheriff asserted. "It was the only one of three recovered pistols that had been fired."

"Rucker and Carter are accusing Williams of the shooting, and Williams is accusing Rucker."

FORD INTRODUCES NEW MERCURY 8

116-Inch Wheelbase Marks Companion to V-8 and Zephyr.

A completely new car, the Mercury 8, was announced yesterday by the Ford Motor Company as a companion to the V-8 and the Lincoln Zephyr. It is in the lower medium price field and is intended to fill a place between the other models in the line.

The Mercury is built on a wheelbase of 116 inches and measures more than 16 feet from bumper to bumper. Its engine is of the V-8 type and develops 95 horsepower, enabling the driver to crawl smoothly or to accelerate quickly to high road speeds when necessary. Easy acting hydraulic brakes insure perfect control at all times.

Distinct Styling. Streamlined in the modern manner, the Mercury bears a family resemblance to the Zephyr but still has distinct styling of its own, both in flowing contours and in interior appointments.

Four body types are available and there are eight color options. The body types are a town-sedan, a sedan, a sedan-coupe and a sport convertible. All are exceptionally roomy, comparing favorably with the size of the Zephyr.

Effective Insulation. An outstanding feature of the Mercury is the quietness of the interiors. With the windows closed, passengers may converse at normal tones even when the car is traveling 70 miles an hour or more. This effective sound insulation is the result of many months of test both on the road and in the laboratory.

Interior styling and appointments are as distinctive as the car's exterior beauty. Typical of this originality are the instrument panel, the two-spoke steering wheel and the steering column support. The panel is tilted to permit all instruments to be read easily. The speedometer and gauges are in a group directly in front of the driver. One of the gauges is a new battery condition indicator.

Its V-8 engine develops 95 horsepower. Its hydraulic brakes enable the driver to slow down or stop quickly. The sedan is a family car, seating six.

New ideas in interior tailoring also are carried out. A paneled and piping treatment is used. In the three closed cars upholstery is tape-colored broadcloth or Bedford cord. In the sport convertible the seat cushions and backs are genuine hand-buffed red leather. Cushions are exceptionally deep and comfortable. The front seat in all body types is adjustable.

Much of the car's equipment is in pairs. There are dual windshield wipers, twin electric air horns, two sun visors and dual combination rear-and-stop lights. The spare wheel is carried upright against the front panel of the luggage compartment.

The chassis frame is of full box sections from the X-member to both ends of the side channels. Springs are of transverse cantilever design with four double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. Transmission is of the block type, preventing clashing of gears in changing from second to high speed.

'CON GAME' COSTS ATLANTA MAN $74

Whilom Friend and Pocket-book Disappear.

The old "con game" is nothing new to Jim Powers, but its latest variation, as practiced on him last night by a too trusted friend, proved mighty expensive.

Declaring, "I thought I was old enough to know all the angles," Powers, who lives at 365 Washington street, S. W., told police he met a man, known to him only as Marvin Andrews, in a pool room on North Pryor street and offered to "buy him a beer."

In return, Powers narrated, the friend offered to take him to his hotel and recapitulate. Arriving at the hotel, Powers related, he felt for his pocketbook and found that it had disappeared. So had his whilom friend.

The wallet, he told police, contained about $74.

'BILL' TURNER IS 74; HE GOES TO PARTY

Veteran Constitution Employee Is Guest of Honor.

William M. (Bill) Turner, veteran foreman of The Constitution pressroom and senior employee of the paper with 60 years' service, marked his 74th birthday anniversary yesterday.

Turner was at work for a few hours in the afternoon, and then was guest of honor at a party given by his friends and family at his home, 1033 North avenue, northeast.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS DRAFT 5-POINT PLAN

Affiliated Clubs To Convene in Valdosta Nov. 18-19 To Discuss Program.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—(P)—Mrs. J. A. Rollison, of Waycross, president of the Georgia Affiliated Democratic Women's Clubs, said today a five-point program would be emphasized at the annual state convention of the organization in Valdosta November 18-19.

The program, adopted recently, calls for:

An active women's division in each county.

Jury duty for women.

A Democratic digest in each precinct.

Equal representation on all party committees.

Adequate finances to meet maintenance requirements.

Mrs. May Thompson Evans, of Washington, D. C., assistant director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee, will be a convention speaker. Governor and Mrs. Rivers are expected to attend.

Mrs. Rollison said she had asked Democratic women in each county division to elect 10 delegates and 10 alternates as representatives to the convention. These delegates, with members of the state board, will represent the voting strength of the state division.

The convention, however, is open to all Democratic women of Georgia.

New officers will be elected this year. Revision of the constitution and by-laws also is scheduled.

Mr. D. Ingram, president of the Lowndes county women's division, will be hostess chairman.

MRS. J. R. CUNNINGHAM FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. J. R. Cunningham, private secretary to Arthur Lucas, president of the Georgia National Bank, who died Monday in a Savannah hospital after a long illness, will be conducted at 9 o'clock this morning at Sacred Heart church by the Rev. Father John Emmerth.

Burial will be in West View cemetery under the direction of Brandon-Bond-Condou.

Mrs. Cunningham, the former Rose Marie Burke, was a native of Macon and had moved to Atlanta about 12 years ago. She was the daughter of the late Edward J. and Alice Burke. In addition to her husband she is survived by a brother, Fred T. Burke, of Miami, Florida.

Hikes 50 Miles To Plead Guilt, Gets Probation

MACON, Ga., Nov. 2.—(P)—A foot-sore 50-year-old Upson county defendant who walked 73 miles to appear in federal court and whose feet hurt so badly he could not enter court received a sentence of two years on probation today.

He is listed as George W. Pike, who pleaded guilty to a violation of the liquor laws. Officers said he left home 15 miles west of Thomaston last Sunday and reached here yesterday afternoon.

His case was set for today, but he couldn't get his shoes on this morning when he awoke in Bibb jail. He asked Joe Stripling, assistant jailer, for rags in which to wrap his feet so he could appear before Judge Bascom S. Deaver.

Stripling wouldn't permit the prisoner to leave the jail, and called federal officers to make other arrangements.

Pike then entered his plea from the jail through the federal officers, and received his sentence.

Neal Evans, alcohol tax agent, took the defendant home in his car this afternoon.

G-MEN FIND BONE IN KIDNAP 'CLUB'

Machine Gun Is Also Discovered in Concealed Compartment.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(P)—A small bone buried under a cement floor patch and a machine gun were found by police tonight in the furnace room of the Ukrainian Club where G-men said a kidnap-killer gang cruelly cremated a victim's body.

The gun was concealed in a secret compartment which contained about 15 holes, similar to those made by bullets.

The bone was sent immediately to a city laboratory to determine whether it was a remnant of the body of Arthur Fried, 32, a White Plains, N. Y., businessman, who disappeared last December 4.

The bullet holes in the 10x10 compartment also penetrated the wall of a telephone booth in the larger furnace room, indicating, the police said, that the place might have served as a gangland execution chamber.

Access to the place was gained, according to federal agents, by a former porter at the hall who kept a key and is now one of four men in custody for three alleged kidnappings in the metropolitan area and the slaying of Fried.

The secret chamber formerly was used as a closet for storing the colorful costumes worn by the Ukrainians on fete days.

The three men held here were turned over by G-men to the New York district attorney. The other named by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, is in Sing Sing.

The decision to dig into the floor was prompted by a city chemist's report that the patching was done after Fried's abduction for a demanded ransom of $200,000.

A laboratory report said stains on a wooden frame of the coal chute at the front of the building were made by human blood and plans were made to dismantle it.

A. M. E. SESSIONS OPENED IN DALTON

Bishop Fountain Presides at 66th Conference.

DALTON, Ga., Nov. 2.—The North Georgia Conference of the A. M. E. church assembled in its sixty-sixth session here in Bethel church. The organization consisted in the election of the following officers: The Rev. G. S. Hardeman, the Rev. C. W. Peters and the Rev. J. S. McAllister, secretaries; the Rev. H. F. Chunn, the Rev. L. C. Curtis, the Rev. W. J. Weaver and the Rev. D. M. Gaither, marshals; the Rev. J. D. Downs, the Rev. R. T. Matthews, the Rev. E. P. Yopp, the Rev. J. S. McAllister, reporters to church periodicals; the Rev. F. B. Wright, associate press reporter.

The annual sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. S. Grant, of Cedar town. Bishop Fountain's keynote address was full of historical data and created much interest. The bishop paid a glowing tribute to President Roosevelt for his achievements and the help he has given the negro race. Bishop Edward J. Howard, bishop of the west coast of Africa, delivered an address touching on the habits and customs of the native Africans, and urged the people of this country to make larger contributions for the cause of missions.

Dr. S. S. Morris, in addressing the conference, pleaded for a larger space for youth in the church program. Dr. A. M. Pierce and Colonel William Sapp extended greetings on behalf of the white citizens. Bishop Howard preached the evangelical sermon Wednesday night to a capacity audience. Dr. A. M. Pierce, commissioner of education, delivered an inspirational address on education representing his department.

The daily institute will be conducted by Dr. D. W. Wiggs. The Rev. H. I. Bearden, the Rev. F. B. Wright, Dean Charles L. Hill, President W. J. Fountain and Professor H. S. Lee and Lovie Lyles will be the lecturers.

The Rev. G. S. Hardeman will preach the missionary sermon Thursday night. Bishop Fountain, Dean Hill, R. B. Harris, B. J. Davis and others will speak.

SHERIFF LEGG ILL. MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 1.—Sheriff E. M. Legg, veteran Cobb officer, was critically ill today at his home on Powder Springs road. He has developed pneumonia, friends at his office said, and his condition was so grave that doctors feared to move him to a hospital.

SOIL CONSERVATION INCREASE IS CITED

Agricultural Agent Points to AAA Assistance.

Walter Brown, director of the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, said yesterday the amount of Georgia soil planted to soil-conserving crops had increased 150 per cent since 1929.

In an interview, he said the acreage increase was from approximately 1,000,000 to 2,500,000. He said the AAA system of payments was largely responsible for the jump in acreage laid to winter legumes.

He said the soil conservation phase of the Triple A "offers one of the greatest opportunities the farmers in Georgia and the south ever had."

"Most of our farmers have long wanted to adopt conservation methods, but they just didn't have the money to do it."

JAPANESE LEAVE DOORS OF PEACE OPEN TO CHINESE

'Chiang Must Go' Statements Missing From Statement of Asiatic Policy.

By MILES W. VAUGHN.
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Chief significance of the Japanese government's declaration today with regard to China lies in the fact that it leaves open the door to peace with the present Chinese regime in Chungking.

"Even the participation of (Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's) Kuomintang government would not be rejected" in creating a new order in China, the statement asserts, "if repudiating the policy which has guided it in the past, and remodeling its personnel so as to translate its rebirth into fact, it were to come forward to join in the establishment of a new order."

Chiang Ignored.
It may be important that the statement does not mention Generalissimo Chiang by name and does not repeat the statements of Japanese leaders in the past that "Chiang must go."

On the basis of the statement, indeed, Japan could make peace with Chiang tomorrow if he would oust the Communists from his all-China anti-Japanese front and make other concessions.

Stripped of verbiage the statement says:

Japan insists that the Chinese government and Chinese people must cease being anti-Japanese and become pro-Japanese.

The Communists must be ousted—meaning that China's relations with Soviet Russia in the future must be controlled by Japan.

Ready for Peace.

Japan is ready to make peace with any Chinese government that will pledge itself to the above points and to political, cultural and general co-operation with Japan and her dependency, Manchukuo.

The Japanese government is determined to go ahead with its program of drastic control of the domestic economy of the empire so that the full strength of every resource of the empire can be thrown into the China conflict and subsequent reconstruction of China if Japan succeeds in conquering the entire country.

The immediate question for Tokyo, of course, is whether any group can be found in the present dominant Kuomintang (Nationalist) group in the Chinese government which will listen to its overtures.

Chiang to Fight.

Generalissimo Chiang, on the basis of his repeated statements, will not and is determined to fight on as long as he can retain any kind of a following.

Former Premier Wang Ching-wei, now a member of the government's standing committee, on the other hand, repeatedly has been reported to be in favor of making peace with the Japanese. Wang heads a considerable group in the Kuomintang and it always is possible, as the Japanese conquer more and more Chinese territory, that this group will desert Chiang and agree to the Japanese demands for "co-operation."

United States Outlook Dark.

From the viewpoint of the United States and the powers the statement is not reassuring. It makes clear that Japan hopes to bring about her domination of all East Asia if she can.

For the United States, which has a comparatively small stake in China, this is of no great importance in economic values but it is important in that if the Japanese succeed American diplomacy will have suffered a major setback.

For Britain and France, with large stakes in China, Japanese domination of China would be a major blow. Carried to its logical conclusion it would mean recession to a Japanese-controlled China of the various territorial concessions of these powers, which are worth huge sums, and a threat to their empires in southern Asia.

FARMERS IN ALABAMA FAVOR COTTON LOANS

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 2.—(P)—More than 1,000 farmers from five north Alabama counties voted unanimously today for continuance of the government's cotton loan program, in what Senator Bankhead said was a first unofficial test of sentiment.

The cotton growers expressed support of the federal program after a talk in which Bankhead explained the plan.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC TO SELL BONDS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(P)—An official of the Securities and Exchange Commission said this afternoon the Argentine republic's statement regarding its projected $25,000,000 bond issue had become effective today.

In other words, he said, the Argentine republics will offer its bonds for sale in this country.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking poisons and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 2 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. If it is the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up night after night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Women Lawyers, Feeling Slighted, Ask for More Good Federal Jobs

Georgia Council of National Association Adopts Resolutions Asking That Members of Their Group Be Appointed to Some of Newly-Created Federal Judgeships

The women in Georgia who get more fun out of a mandamus action than they do in wielding a broom handle are demanding more recognition.

Women lawyers insist that the men should not capture all the good jobs, so they are asking that more women be appointed to such positions.

In resolutions adopted by the Georgia council of the National Association of Women Lawyers, of which Miss Juliet Dowling, of Atlanta, is regional director, they urged that members of their group be appointed to some of the newly created federal judgeships and recommended that women be appointed as district attorneys or assistant district attorneys in each of the 48 states.

"Well Qualified."

The resolutions declare that "in every state in the United States and in the District of Columbia there are women well trained in the law and well qualified by training, experience and temperament to serve as federal judges."

The women lawyers also endorsed a resolution urging Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Public Health, to arrange for clinics where birth control information and instruction will be given in all county health units and that the county of Fulton definitely include this plan in the health program for the county.

Prevention Urged.

Resolutions added "we feel the taxpayers' money would be more wisely spent through methods of prevention rather than of treatment." High infant mortality and maternal death rate were given as reasons for the proposal.

Dr. Abercrombie was also requested to provide some place beside the jail for housing mental patients before they are sent to the state institution at Milledgeville.

Some institution, hospital or other place of confinement should be provided for such persons pending their permanent removal, it was pointed out.

Another resolution indorsed the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution authorizing congress to pass uniform marriage and divorce legislation.

"It is important for the well-being of the home and the nation that there should be uniformity in the laws governing marriage and divorce in the several states of the Union," the resolution sets out.

Mrs. Gladys Medlock, of Atlanta, is national regional director of the association. Other regional directors are Cleo Pearson, of Manchester; Callie Kennedy, of Camilla, and Miss Dowling.

Man Sues Theater

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2.—(P)—I. V. Rosenman, an attorney, today filed suit for $250 damages against a Cleveland theater, asserting a mouse ran up his pants leg while he was watching a movie.

The petition stated the plaintiff "felt a movement in his pants leg, reached down and squeezed the mouse to death after being scratched and bitten."

Rosenman said he was filled with a feeling of "loathing and disgust," was unable to sleep that night and was forced to discard his clothes, valued at $25.

A NEW CAR JOINS THE FORD QUALITY GROUP

THE MERCURY

V-TYPE

Eight

A PRODUCT OF THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY

THE MERCURY V-8 TOWN SEDAN

For 1939 the Ford Motor Company presents an entirely new car—The Mercury Eight—designed to bring a new standard of value to the lower medium-price field. Outstanding features are streamlined beauty—rich upholstery and appointments—95-horsepower V-type engine—hydraulic brakes—remarkable quiet and comfort—116-inch wheelbase—wide bodies—exceptional room for passengers and luggage.

THOUSANDS of motorists, noting the extra value provided by the Ford in the low-price field and by the Lincoln-Zephyr in the higher medium-price field, have desired an equally outstanding value in the lower medium-price field.

The new Mercury 8 is the answer to that desire. It provides the added size and luxury that extra dollars buy, plus something this price class has never known before... traditional Ford quality and dependability, with the performance and economy of a Ford-built V-type eight-cylinder engine.

It is made possible by the modern, progressive policies of the Ford Motor Company and its constant effort to give greater value to a widening circle of motorists.

The clean, flowing lines of the new Mercury reflect the distinction of the Lincoln-Zephyr—and, as every one knows, the Lincoln-Zephyr is now the accepted style leader, and an example of Ford pioneering in original design.

The Mercury is a big car—long and unusually wide—with exceptional space for passengers and luggage. Three people can ride comfortably (we emphasize the word comfortably) in both the front and back seats. Head room and leg room are equal to that of many cars selling at considerably higher prices.

Because the Mercury is a big car, it is powered by a big 95-horsepower engine. It is of the eight-cylinder V-type which has made such an unusual record of performance. Motorists who now own cars in this price field will be amazed at the economy of the Mercury 8.

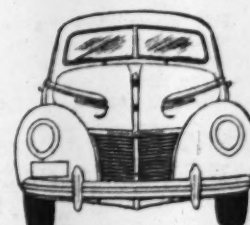

It is a remarkably quiet car. Scientific research by Ford engineers has minimized noise and vibration. Microphones and stethoscopes have been used to locate the sources of disturbing noises and new sound-deadening materials have been developed.

Bodies are all-steel, of course, welded into a single one-piece unit for your greater protection. It is equipped with hydraulic brakes built to strict Ford standards of safety and dependability.

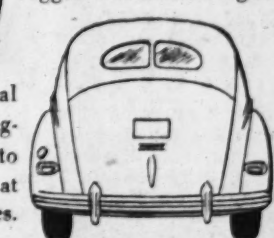

We invite you to see the new Mercury 8.

DIXIE IS EXPANDING, RAIL LEADER FINDS

Everything Points to Development, Executive Says in Pause Here.

Everything in the south is pointing toward a greater industrial development and a more prosperous era, Frederick E. Williamson, president of the New York Central railroad, declared yesterday.

The New York railroad official paused here briefly en route to Chicago from Florida, where he had been observing the movement of citrus fruit to the northern markets.

"Your section is attracting more industries to it than any other part of the nation," he said. "With the natural resources that you have in the south, a prosperous era seems to be in the offing."

The railroad president seemed happy about the business outlook at the present time. He notes an optimistic trend throughout the nation and especially in the south. "General factors point to an upturn," he observed. "Whether this is seasonal or not, I do not know. However, we have reasons which make us optimistic."

Williamson said he was engaged in a general study of business conditions in the south but that he had not had time to observe the business trends of Georgia and Atlanta.

FUNDS TO JOBLESS DROP IN SEPTEMBER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Social Security Board reported today claims for unemployment benefits were 24 per cent fewer in September than in August, continuing a three-month decline.

The report also showed the disbursement of $41,500,000 in September was nearly $6,000,000 less than in the previous month. The board said, however, that exclusive of New York state, which alone accounted for about $4,300,000 of the decrease, the drop in the remaining states was relatively small—4.4 less than in August.

New State Park To Be Developed in Macon County--Abounds in Springs

Georgia acquired a site for a new state park yesterday through the gift of about 800 acres of land in Macon county just north of Oglethorpe. In the center of this group, R. F. Burch Jr., Georgia commissioner of natural resources, and Judge Jule Felton, Macon county attorney, are shown examining the deed to the property.

7 MINERAL SPRINGS DONATED TO STATE

800-Acre Tract at Miona Park Will Be Developed, Burch Says.

The state park system gained an 800-acre tract named after an Indian maiden and abounding in mineral springs at formal presentation ceremonies yesterday.

Natural Resources Commissioner R. F. Burch Jr. received the deed from a delegation of Macon county officials. Burch said it would be developed as Miona Springs State Park.

Seven principal springs, each with a separate mineral content, flow within a radius of 150 yards in the site. They contain magnesium, lithium, sulphur, iron, radium and chalybeate. Many Indian relics are found in the area.

The site is near the Flint river, eight miles north of Oglethorpe. Commissioner Burch pointed out it is 50 miles north of Chehaw State Park, 50 miles south of Ocmulgee park and 50 miles east of Fort Benning.

The area was first known as Flint River Springs. Then it became known as Macon County Springs. This name was later changed to Miona, from a legend written in 1882 about an Indian maiden of that name.

Orphans To See Circus Monday As Class Guests

Dreams of circus days with clowns, wild animals, popcorn and pink lemonade, will come true Monday for 200 boys and girls in the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home.

They will be the guests of the Men's Bible Class of the Second Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church at the matinee performance of the Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto combined shows which will feature the outstanding attractions of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey.

Five coaches provided by the Georgia Power Company will take the group to the circus grounds on Highland avenue leaving the home at 12:30 o'clock. And for many it will be their first trip to "the big top."

Dr. M. L. Brittain is teacher of the class and J. F. Gordy is president. Plans for the circus party are being handled by a committee headed by Bolling Jones Jr.

FUND DIVERSION TREND REVERSED

Highway Cash Used on Roads, Printup Says.

The 1937 reports of state highway income and expenditures published by the United States Bureau of Public Roads reveal reversal in the tendency of state legislatures to divert highway funds to non-highway purposes.

This fact was cited yesterday by Neil W. Printup, secretary of the Georgia Petroleum Industries Committee.

Printup pointed out that reports disclosed no diversion in 14 states, substantial reduction in diversion in nine states, and abandonment of the policy by two states.

PRIVATE ARBITRATION TO SETTLE LEGAL FIGHT

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Florida's supreme court cast aside precedent today and arranged private arbitration of a seven-month-old legal dispute over the recall of three Miami city commissioners.

The unique procedure was proposed—and quickly accepted by both sides—during oral arguments on charges that the entire commission was in contempt of the supreme court for suspending City Clerk Frank J. Kelly a third time last Saturday.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS GET TWO VIOLINS

Mrs. Mays Badgett Makes Presentation as Memorial to Husband.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Presentation of two valuable violins to the public schools of Atlanta as a memorial to the members of the In-and-Out Atlanta High School orchestra, and to two young erstwhile musicians in particular. These two were chosen to use the instruments and to receive instruction through the schools. Millicent Jane Schneider, who is in the fifth grade of Forrest Avenue school, was the little girl chosen from the elementary schools. Joseph Clayton, who is in the seventh grade of Bass Junior High school, was the boy chosen from the high schools. Both these children were chosen through elimination tests for natural musical talent.

William E. Arnaud, president of the Atlanta Philharmonic Society, made the presentation address for Mrs. Badgett at the ceremony held at the rehearsal of the orchestra last night at the Chamber of Commerce building. A representative group of musical leaders and parents were also in attendance.

Arnaud paid high tribute to the memory of Mays Badgett, of his position as one of the finest violin makers of the country, telling of how Mr. Badgett for years had the only broadcast of a concert orchestra from a private home in America, and how he always entertained the members of the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera Company as one of the high-lighted events of the opera season each spring.

Dr. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools, accepted the gift, which also included two pictures of Mr. Badgett, in behalf of the schools, speaking appreciatively for such a fitting and inspirational memorial. He also praised the orchestra for its splendid work, encouraging members in their preparations for their spring concert. He made the announcement that an order for $8,000 of musical instruments had been placed, the Board of Education having appropriated $4,000, and the high schools of the city having matched that sum with $4,000 more—a wonderful report for the future of instrumental music in the schools!

MOYERS IS DENIED FREEDOM ON BOND

Weapons Found in Cell Bring Refusal of Release Pending Appeal.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton superior court, denied William T. Moyers, attorney under a three-year sentence for armed robbery, the right to post a $2,500 appeal bond yesterday after Solicitor General John A. Boykin charged in a petition the prisoner was a man of "violent disposition."

The charges grew out of the discovery of several crudely fashioned weapons in Moyers' cell in Fulton tower by jail deputies last Saturday night, officers revealed. The deputies said the weapons included clubs, knives, razors and daggers. Chief Jailer A. B. Foster said experts of the county police identification bureau were threatened when they attempted to fingerprint and photograph Moyers following his conviction Friday.

Judge Etheridge directed that Moyers' attorney, George Finch, be served with a copy of his order and set a hearing for this morning when Finch is directed to show cause why the order should not be made permanent.

TRAINED BOY SCOUTS PUT OUT FOREST FIRE

Atlanta Boy Scouts put into practice their fire-fighting knowledge yesterday when a forest fire threatened the Bert Adams Scout camp near Vinings.

The fire burned for several hours yesterday morning but was brought under control early in the afternoon by volunteer workers and mobilized groups of Atlanta Scouts. The flames which began on a near-by mountain came to within a quarter-mile of the Scout camp.

It was, however, in 1810 that the Overholt family in Pennsylvania, the first of that name to have come over here, settled in the county along the Susquehanna river. It is interesting to speculate whether or not the soldier Overholts, either during the French and Indian war or the Revolutionary war, was in the area.

It is natural that the marking of such an anniversary should arouse interest or command attention. It is a fact that the Overholt family has been in the county since 1810. The first record of the Overholt family in this country and in Pennsylvania, the first of that name to have come over here, settled in the county along the Susquehanna river. It is interesting to speculate whether or not the soldier Overholts, either during the French and Indian war or the Revolutionary war, was in the area.

It is what Henry Overholt did. Martin, an intense but gentle man of the Mennonite faith, came to this country to enjoy the land and to enjoy the life. He left Bucks and moved on to the county of the Virginians. Overholt had stood for a long time in the "crossing place" of the county, also stood and some distance from the space in the

2 LIGHTKEEPERS MISSING IN GULF

Coast Guard, Boats, Planes Find No Trace After 36 Hours.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Hopes for safety of two men missing in a 25-foot boat in the Mis-issippi sound since Tuesday dimmed tonight after three coast guard planes and a fleet of three fast guard boats conducted an unsuccessful search today.

All the area between Gulfport and Chandeleur island had been covered and found no trace of the boat.

The men, overdue nearly 36 hours on a trip from Gulfport to Chandeleur Light, were identified today as William Delong, assistant keeper of the Chandeleur Light, and L. P. Mayon, second assistant keeper of the Ship Island light. Both are residents of Gulfport.

The pair left Gulfport at 1 a. m. Tuesday with a load of supplies, and were expected to arrive at Chandeleur island three hours later, coast guard officials said.

Rose Garden Club Celebrates Tenth Birthday Anniversary

Cutting of Birthday Cake Marks Luncheon Complimenting Members

By Sally Forth.

TEN yellow tapers adorning a square-shaped cake burned brightly yesterday in celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of the Rose Garden Club, one of Atlanta's leading horticultural organizations. Members of the club gathered for the celebration at the Andrews drive residence of Mrs. William Dunn, who entertained at a birthday luncheon for the group.

Taking cognizance of the club's current study on lines and arrangement, the hostess planned her table decorations accordingly. The cake was placed at one end of the table, and at the opposite end a crystal horn of plenty, overflowing with colorful fruit, was arranged. The square cake was baked with a hollow center filled with small roses—official flower of the club. Garlands of red and yellow leaves added an autumnal note to the attractive decorations.

After luncheon the members enjoyed a talk by Mrs. Willard McBurney, a past president of the club, who spoke on flower arrangement. Later, an informal flower show was held, the members exhibiting fall flowers culled from their gardens.

The Rose Garden Club was formed in 1928 by the late Mrs. Morton Rolleston with 12 matrons becoming charter members. They were Mesdames William Dunn, Fred Coolidge Jr., Charles S. Evans, James G. Lyon, Hayden Jones, Charles Marshall, Carlton McKinney, Ernest Osborne, Crosby Swanson, Norwood Griffith and Harry Johnson.

Beautifying the grounds at Hillside Cottages is the chief project of the club. Mrs. Thomas Howell Scott is the club's present leader. Past presidents are Mesdames Willard McBurney, J. Harrison Hines, Philip Graves, Fleming Law and Fred Coolidge Jr. The late Mrs. Rolleston, who organized the club, became its first president. Present officers serving with Mrs. Scott are Mesdames Hayden Jones, vice president; Ernest Osborne, recording secretary; I. M. Sheffield Jr., corresponding secretary; Carlton McKinney, treasurer, and James W. Speas, assistant treasurer.

A VERY high honor has recently been conferred upon one of Decatur's most popular belles.

Anne Edge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Edge, has been elected president of the freshman class at the University of Georgia. Anne, who is a pledge of the Delta Delta Delta sorority, is known on the campus as Eleanor Powell II, because of her striking resemblance to the dancer.

Miss Huff To Wed Champion Titus

Wide interest centers in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Anne Huff, of Buffalo, N. Y., formerly of this city, to Champion Titus, of Buffalo. The marriage will be a brilliant event of the spring.

Miss Huff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwin Huff, who lived in Atlanta for many years before moving to Buffalo. The bride-elect graduated from Washington Seminary where she was a member of the Phi Pi sorority, of which she was secretary and was president of the Pirates' Club. Miss Huff was voted the most attractive girl in the senior class at school and since moving to Buffalo she has identified herself socially in that city as a member of the Junior League and also as a leader in dramatic circles.

Mr. Titus is the son of Mr. Richard Henry Titus, of Battle Creek, Mich. He is now connected in business in Buffalo.

Miss Delle Hancock Marries S. M. Howell Jr. in Marietta

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Miss Delle Hancock and Samuel Monroe Howell Jr., of Cartersville, were married here this evening at the Presbyterian church in the presence of a prominent assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. J. H. Patton, retired pastor, and Rev. M. O. Sommers, pastor, officiated.

Stately palms, smilax and potted plants banked the altar which was beautified with floor baskets of white chrysanthemums and seven-branched candelabra containing white tapers.

Miss Lucy Bailey, organist, and Mrs. A. V. Cortelyou, soloist, rendered a musical program.

Groomsmen and ushers were Dr. William Quillian, Fred Lester, Don Hancock, uncle of the bride, all of Cartersville; Dr. W. H. Perkins, Tom Kennedy and Remley Brumby, Dr. S. M. Howell, father of the groom, was best man.

Mrs. Frank Dillard, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore a model of periwinkle blue slipper satin made empire style. The bodice featured a heart-shaped neckline and short, puffed sleeves. A butterfly bow of rose velvet centered the back of the gown and streamers fell from the short waistline to the hemline. She carried a colonial bouquet of Parma violets encircled with rose, blue and white valley lilies.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. James Hancock, sister of the bride, and Miss Dorothy Howell, sister of the groom, wore rose-colored satin gowns fashioned like that of the matron of honor, the bows adorning their gowns being of periwinkle blue. Their bouquets were identical with that of the matron of honor.

Little Dawn Dillard, flower girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dillard, of Summerville, was a dainty figure in her gown fashioned like that of her mother. Her bouquet was a miniature like that carried by the matron of honor.

Ralph James Hancock gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned along princess lines, the bodice of which featured a high neckline and leg of mutton sleeves. Her only ornament was a gold chain round her neck to which was attached a miniature of her mother, the late Mrs. Ralph Hancock, who before her marriage was Miss Lottie Pearl LaVere, of Birmingham. Her full-length veil of lace-trimmed illusion tulle was caught to her hair with a cluster of orange blossoms and was adorned in front with a tiera of seed pearls.

After the ceremony Mrs. J. W. Hancock, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Frank Dillard entertained at a reception at the Marietta Golf Club for the wedding party, the families and a limited number of friends.

Mrs. Hancock was gowned in a model of white lace and she wore orchids.

Mrs. Sam Howell, mother of the groom, wore a gown of royal blue velvet and a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mrs. Phillip Head, of Miami, aunt of the bride, was gowned in white trimmed with sequin sleeves. Her flowers were orchids. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Jack Hodges, Robert Fowler, O. E. Madison, Fowler, Bill Tate, Don Hancock, Allen Brown and Misses Elizabeth Fowler, Marjorie Collins, Peggy Carmichael, Jeanne Massey and Anne Elizabeth Hancock, of Atlanta.

Mr. Howell and his bride left for a wedding trip. The bride traveled in a two-piece teal blue ensemble which featured sleeves of black wolf. Her accessories were black and she wore orchids. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Howell will reside at the Harvey apartments in Cartersville, where Mr. Howell is connected with the Chemical Products Company.

Baptist Orphans' Home Trustees Hold Meeting

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home a number of applications from over the state for admission of children into the home were received. E. J. White, manager, presented the newest arrivals at the home, three unusually attractive children from Brunswick, Temple, Evelyn and J. D. Higgenbotham.

The home will be represented by Dr. O. E. Rutland at the Georgia Baptist convention on November 15 at the First Baptist church, Atlanta. Dr. Rutland is pastor at Rome and is thoroughly acquainted with the operation of the home having served for several years as one of its most efficient trustees. The report and plans of the home will be discussed by the convention on the evening program, November 15.

Sympathy was expressed for Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Damsen, of Dameron having been recently injured in an accident. For six years Mrs. Damsen was a trustee of the home, having resigned a short time ago to move to Greenville, S. C. Mrs. Damsen was succeeded on the board by Miss Jessie Terry, of Atlanta.

Appreciation was extended the Atlanta W. M. U. Mrs. J. W. Awtry, superintendent, and Mrs. E. G. Clinkscales, chairman of personal service, for the linen shower given the home. Contributions of the missionary societies of Atlanta amounted to more than $700 in all.

The meeting was opened with a devotional by Mrs. George Westmoreland. Other members present were Mesdames E. S. Caldwell, G. W. Gifford, M. T. Moncrief, J. M. Crawford, H. E. Short, H. R. Fischer, Forrest Garrard, L. O. Freeman and Miss Jessie Terry.

Twenty-Five Club.

Mrs. Ludelle Bullard was honor guest at the recent meeting of the Twenty-Five Club held at the home of the president, Mrs. Daisy Sills.

Games and contests were played, and prizes were won by Mesdames Frances Rowan and Bullard and Miss Mildred Chastain.

Mrs. Florence Smith invited the club to hold the next meeting on November 8 at her home.

New Edition of "Ole Doc Brady's" Medicine Cupboard Announced

Well Regulated Household Needs Emergency Remedies

By Dr. William Brady.

In a well conducted household the medicine cupboard should contain, besides the essential or-emergency remedies already suggested, certain surgical supplies itemized below and accurately and clearly written or printed formulas or recipes for all remedies any member of the family is likely to use. In almost every mailbag I find a letter or two asking for the formula for some simple remedy the reader has used with satisfaction and wishes to prepare or have prepared again but—it is so easy to forget—the reader can't be sure about the ingredients.

Surgical Supplies: Two gauze bandages 1 1/2 inches; two gauze bandages 2 1/2 inches; one all cotton washable elastic bandage 3 inches; spool of adhesive plaster 1 inch; four-ounce carton absorbent cotton; three sealed envelopes sterile gauze.

I believe that it is sufficient to cover all ordinary household emergencies.

Soothing, protective salve for irritated or painful bites, stings, burns, wounds, herpes (cold sores), etc., may be kept in the medicine cupboard in collapsible tube. The simplest of these is a one-ounce tube of sterile petrolatum, useful to prevent dressings from sticking to a wound or sore. Ole Doc Ointment is another which gives grateful relief to smarting and irritation of bites, stings, burns or sores. It should be in collapsible tube. It is made up as follows:

Boric acid powder, 5 grains; Benzoin acid powder, 5 grains; Zinc stearate powder, 20 grains; Zinc peroxide powder, 20 grains; Zinc oxide powder, 60 grains; Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol and Pine Oil, of each one drop or one grain; Oil of Rosemary, 3 drops; Lanolin and Petrolatum (of each enough to make one ounce of ointment). To be kept in collapsible tube labelled "Ole Doc Salve."

Incidentally this salve is suitable to apply to skin irritations or eruptions in general, such as eczema and impetigo.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Kilbourne Method.

Please advise what the hydrocele treatment devised by the late Dr. Norman J. Kilbourne consists of, and whether it could be used in the case of an 11-year-old boy, also whether our own physician could give the treatment. (J. D. H. Jr.)

Answer—It is injection treatment. Any good physician can give the treatment by following the technique given by Dr. Kilbourne. It is as suitable for a child as for an adult. The technique was published in full in California and Western Medicine (450 Sutter street, San Francisco) in July, 1932.

Diet and Arteries.

Can you tell me what foods or what kind of diet may be most harmful for the arteries when a man reaches 60 and has some hardening of the arteries? Is meat especially bad? (M. A. B.)

Answer—No particular kind of food or diet is bad for the arteries, in my judgment. Meat is all right, just so long as the man is temperate in his eating. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

A Self-Supporting Daughter Should Make Own Decisions

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am past 60 and have one daughter who is not married. She's my baby and has never known what it is to want for anything, not even a car. At present she is teaching school and has enough to spend for pleasure as her only expenses are board when she's away from home. Four years ago she became interested in a poor boy and since that time he's gone instead of up. Right now he isn't making an adequate living for one; yet she is thinking of marrying him. He isn't her equal in any way, has little education and a poor family background. Up to this time none of us has dared say a word against the marriage which we all feel would be a tragedy. Can you tell us how to make her see what a fearful mistake she's making before it's too late and incidentally before I lose my mind.

A DISTRACTED MOTHER.

Answer: I'm afraid I can't give you the recipe you want because, while your daughter is your baby, she's her own woman, self-supporting, independent, and no doubt she thinks she's self-sufficient. She has seen in the fiancé something that you and the family haven't seen—otherwise she wouldn't love him—and while I grant you that his record doesn't indicate that he would make the girl a good husband there's nothing you can do but point out the facts and let them speak for themselves.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

Ted McMichael observes that many girls are afraid to say that they are enjoying themselves. The man can't tell unless she does say so; anyway, men find the admission gratifying—and charming.

Barbara Bell's Smart Tailored Blouse

It's a perfect style to wear with your tweed coat or fur jacket, extremely smart for business and runabout—this tailored blouse, with a plain, classic skirt. The blouse has a smart, high, tailored collar, straight sleeves and gathers beneath a shoulder yoke to keep it from undue severity.

This design is one that can be made in many, many different materials—flat crepe, flannel, plaid wool, jersey or the silk. It's stunning all in one color, or in such arresting contrasts as scarlet and black, gold and dark green, gray and violet, and of course white with navy or black. Be sure to use contrast for the decorative lines of stitching.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1801-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 14 (32) requires 1 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for long-sleeved blouse; 2 yards of 39-inch material for long-sleeved blouse; 1 1/2 yards of 54-inch material for the skirt without nap. Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Hollywood Correspondent Gathers Bits of News From the Studios

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2.—Roland Young tells me that he did not say that a certain actress in one of his recent pictures was "allergic to acting." "All I said," says Roland, "was that she was a terrible actress." The Freddie March children practice piano-playing for hours at a time. They are being brought up as musical geniuses. Fred Astaire sending his mother, who is staying with daughter Adele in Lismore Castle, Ireland, the latest bunch of "stills" from his latest movie. Mrs. Austenitz owns a complete set of "stills" from every picture in which Fred has appeared. Irish Pat O'Brien driving a green car.

Hedy Lamarr, who has such a beautiful face, wears straps over her ankles at night—she wants to make them thinner. Maybe it is because Hedy's face is so lovely that the rest of her has a hard time measuring up to the standard it sets. While a scene was being shot for "Kentucky," a dog named "Kentucky" was brought to the set. Someone was sent to shush the canine, which peevish the woman owner. "It's my dog and he can bark as long as he wants to," she told the emissary. Production was held up until the dog stopped barking.

Nat Pendleton tells me he directed a picture 15 years ago in New York at a cost of $60,000. It was never released. When Wendy Barrie applied for a chorus girl job from C. B. Cochran, he turned her down. Johnny Downs, who plays a small role in "Algiers" with Charles Boyer, says, "I don't care how small the parts I play in future pictures, just as long as I play them with Boyer." Together with William Powell, Boyer is the most popular star hereabouts with the minor players. The reason—Bill and Charles don't object to distributing the spotlight.

Low Ayres tells me, anent the new popularity of Ginger Rogers, "It's very pleasant to watch Ginger developing so delightfully." (Ginger's success has been held responsible for separating the couple.) The voices of the three girls who sang "I Love to Whistle" in "Mad About Music" were supplied by Mrs. Connie Krebs, who also speaks for Minnie Mouse and two of the three little pigs. She earns an average of $400 a week doing it. Dick Powell has built a nurse and play room in his yacht for Norman Scott and newcomer Ellen Powell. On the last day of shooting "Marie Antoinette," Norma Shearer "blew up," a very rare occurrence with this conscientious actress. Director W. S. Van Dyke told Norma casually that Jeanette MacDonald never "blows up." Which had the effect of making Norma forget her lines seven "takes" in a row.

Ellen Drew tells me she should have played the Lady Katherine role in "If I Were King" (portrayed by Frances Dee). "But Frank Lloyd saw my test. He said I was not ethical enough for a lady." A few years ago, George Bancroft turned down $75,000 for a picture. He wanted—and got—$90,000 a picture. He is now on the comeback trail, and lucky if he gets $90 a day six days a week. First Fundamental of Trump Management at a Suit Bid

By Harold Sharpsteen.

One of the first fundamentals of trump management at a suit bid is: Postpone leading trumps when dummy-hand contains a void suit or a singleton. Holding losers in the suit in which dummy is void, declarer employs dummy's trumps desperately to save his losers by ruffing. When dummy-hand contains a singleton, and closed-hand holds losers in the same suit, declarer usually concedes the exposed trick as early in the play as possible.

A SULLY PORTRAIT. "The walls are a dusty pink, which looks awful with the maple furniture. I have a blue-green rug and white Venetian blinds. Now, what would you suggest for new wall-paper and new draperies for the windows which are only 65 inches long and look as if someone has flung them up on the wall. I'd thought of using soft white mesh with tiny white fringe draped in swag fashion across the top and down the sides. There is just enough money for new wall-paper, curtains and perhaps a few accessories. I have a lovely Sully portrait to go on the wall over the sofa. Thanks for any help you can give me."

THE ANSWER. One thing you can be thankful for—you have plenty of windows which makes an apartment so much pleasanter to live in. If I were you, I'd consider the book shelves between the windows as a focal point, using it as the center of interest in the room. Have the sofa at right angles to it on one side and two easy chairs facing the sofa on the other side of the shelves. This will add a great deal of graciousness to the room. An aquarium tank would be my choice for your wall color. It will be smart with the rug and the maple and will go with your upholstery. Your idea for draperies sounds all right—though you might consider using aqua mesh instead of white. I'd like to see copper and details of yellow here in accessories. Indian Doll Popular With Kiddies

A Large Frame Carries More Weight

By Ida Jean Kain.

You can't be what you are not, and if you are tall, with a large frame, you can't be ultra streamlined and it would be unwise to try. A drastic reduction in weight would certainly make you look angular, and it might seriously affect your health.

It takes a singer—whose career depends upon vitality—to realize the full danger of too rigorous a diet and how important it is to exercise discretion in slimming. For this reason you can't find a better example to follow than that of Mmes. Lotte Lehmann, the distinguished Metropolitan opera soprano.

With Mme. Lehmann, the voice comes first and it is cause enough for shunning the foolish diets that would rob her of that magnificent vitality. But for the large woman who does not have to consider her voice, there is still another argument against lowering the vitality. A superb carriage means more to this Junesque type than to any other, and it is impossible to hold yourself regally erect—as Mme. Lehmann does—when you are worn out from too strict a diet.

This singer has worked out a very simple and sensible plan by which she keeps her weight under control. Every so often, whether she needs to or not, she goes on a salt-free diet for a few days. All starches and sweets are omitted from the menus, and meats and vegetables are prepared without a grain of salt. "After a day or so, one becomes accustomed to going without salt and it is not hard. Also," with a rueful smile, "it is much easier to control the appetite on such a diet."

There is no objection to your adoption of the balanced reducing menu, but you require more than the allowance of 1,200 calories. You may be able to reduce satisfactorily on as many as 1,600 calories per day. Go off the diet as soon as you are down to the rather generous weight your frame allows—about 110 pounds for the basic five feet of height, and five and one-half pounds for each additional inch of height.

Whether dieting or not, you need daily exercise and should, if possible, engage in an activity you like. Mme. Lehmann likes to swim every day and thinks swimming the best exercise for the large woman. In addition, she does stretching exercises for a trim waist. You may not be able to swim as often as you should, but you can walk every day and, backed up with stretching, walking is excellent.

Mme. Lehmann's program is not spectacular. . . it is the kind you could adopt to advantage. Balanced Reducing Menu for the Average Woman.

Delighted Jane—she knows what to say on every occasion! Meeting a new man at a formal affair she's poised and formal with "it's always nice to meet Eve's friends."

Strolling down a country lane with Don, she dresses her talk with colorful words. "Don't you love the smoky blue of autumn?" Like money in the bank, really, is a stock of friendly phrases, lively words. No awkward moments when you have them to draw out! An unexpected caller arrives? Say "Just the person I want to see." You're stranded with strangers at a party? "Why haven't I met you before, do you live near by?"

When the talk gets peppery, be tactful with "That's a very interesting way to look at it." Never freeze people with "I think you're wrong."

And how you shine in conversation when you can hit the nail on the head with vivid words. Not for you to fumble with "Oh, you know what I mean?" or "It was—well, you've been at their house—you know."

Miss Shirley Becomes Bride of Mr. Tribble.

LAVONIA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Miss Josephine Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Shirley, became the bride of William Lanier Tribble, of Atlanta and Nashville, Tenn., on October 9 at the home of the bride's parents here. Rev. T. P. Tribble, of Atlanta, officiated at the ceremony.

The improvised altar was attractively decorated with ferns, interspersed with white chrysanthemums and candelabra, which held white tapers. These were lighted by Misses Mary Price and Bob Ledbetter.

The bride was attired in a brown costume suit with walnut accessories. Her flowers were valley lilies and tallismen roses.

At the reception, Mrs. Shirley was assisted by Misses Mary Jim Burton and Eleanor Craft, the guests including the families and out-of-town guests for the wedding.

The young couple left on their wedding trip through Tennessee and the Carolinas.

The bride attended Piedmont College and was last year a member of the Lavonia school faculty. He is connected with an air-conditioning firm near Jacksonville, Fla., where the couple are residing.

Camp Fire Girls Continue Course.

Camp Fire Girls' leadership training course will hold a session this morning from 10 to 12 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A., 37 Auburn avenue. The Camp Fire program is based around the seven crafts and the following leaders will present the crafts: Mrs. A. E. Wilson, home craft; Mrs. J. L. Hardy, hand craft; Mrs. H. L. Tillery, leather craft; Mrs. Walter Thomas, nature lore; Mrs. R. L. Ramsey, business craft and Mrs. R. P. Seitzinger, citizenship. Mrs. G. A. Lafitte and Mrs. T. W. Branch will be hostesses of the day and will be in charge of registration.

Dr. Lester Rumble will speak on "The Place of Leadership in a Girl's Life." Folk dances and games will be taught by Miss Virginia Carmichael, of the WPA recreational department.

Eugenia Booth Christened Sunday.

Little Eugenia Helene Booth, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Booth, was christened Sunday afternoon at the home of her parents on Collier road. A group of close friends were present, among them Mrs. Aubrey Zorn, of Thomaston. Lifelong friend of the baby's family.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton performed the service. Mrs. Joseph Bennett, of Atlanta, and Homer Thompson, of New Orleans, are the baby's god-parents.

Eugenia wore a hand-embroidered French batiste dress trimmed with tucks and val lace. Pinned to her shoulder was a miniature bouquet of valley lilies and a single rosebud.

The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Shank, of Kilgore, Texas, and the paternal grandparents are Mrs. Eugene T. Booth, of Coronado, Cal., and Atlanta, and the late Dr. Booth.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 3, 1938.

WHO IS THY NEIGHBOR?

The Atlanta Community Chest has launched its 1938 campaign, seeking $425,000 to finance the community-wide services performed by the group of agencies financed through the chest. The weeks of preliminary work are over and the volunteer solicitors, the men and women who give their time to this greatest of causes for the good of the city, are today calling on fellow citizens to "Give, Neighbor!"

That phrase, "Give, Neighbor!" is the slogan of this year's campaign. It is a call that carries so many important connotations it is worthy of serious study.

Nearly 2,000 years ago, Jesus Christ was asked the question "Who is my neighbor?" His reply is found in the parable of the Good Samaritan. That reply is as true today as it was then. Our neighbor is always the fellow human who, by quirk of fate, needs our help. And, on the other hand, our neighbor is he who comes with assistance when we are the unfortunate, who need it.

Yet, in this question of support for the Community Chest, the spirit and the effect of neighborliness reaches even deeper than the ancient parable implies.

There are, for instance, the tubercular among us. The Community Chest, through its agencies, reaches out to cure these stricken ones and, likewise, to halt the spread of that dread contagion. The man or woman called upon to give to aid the war on tuberculosis may feel it is no direct concern of his. But, when a loved one of that same man contracts the disease it is brought forcefully home to him. And the tragedy lies in the fact that the one who innocently infected his own might have been cured long before if he had been more generous in his gifts to the chest.

The agencies of the chest do much to make good citizens of the youth who are today growing up around us, to steer their adolescent feet away from the paths of crime. Surely it pays to be a good neighbor to these younger ones, in their formative years, to keep Atlanta clearer of crime and criminals.

The Community Chest, through the Family Welfare Society and other agencies, holds together little families which have fallen upon evil days and, instead of sending their members out alone, to sink or swim in a hard world, keeps another family unit happy and contented, to add to the sum total of good Atlanta homes.

There are other agencies doing their work, too, for your neighbors. Providing for the orphans and the aged, the sick and the homeless and the friendless.

Remember, if we do not now act the part of good neighbors, we shall be the ones to suffer in the future as the evils and the sufferings we could have checked, spread over the community. "Who is my neighbor?" The answer to that question is plain.

"Give, Neighbor."

FRANCE AND THE FUTURE

France shifted sharply to the right and dangerously near dictatorship when Premier Edouard Daladier seized the reins of government from the popular front and drove the country toward greater internal discipline. If that discipline can be attained through the emergency powers granted the premier, and retained in the next meeting of the chamber of deputies, it may be expected that La Belle France will remain unwarmed and happy; otherwise a marriage with totalitarianism is inevitable.

But this is not necessarily the course which will be followed. France, in the long years past, has been an extremely volatile land and the ebb and flow of politics frequently resolves into a calm, but measured, dumbfounding of the soothsayers. Its people have wooed Communism as something interesting, something curious to be examined and discussed at great length but without great seriousness. Deeply ingrained has been a love of freedom, of democracy and of unity.

In the face of crises France has always been strong. Such a crisis has been forced upon its people by humiliation, and from that deep humiliation will come resolution and strength. Daladier will merely furnish the vehicle of that strength. It might perhaps be the wiser course if he forced an election for a new chamber of deputies. The temper of the people would return a stronger, more representative delegation from which decisive government rather than political haggling could be expected. France, today, is forced to follow the leadership of Great Britain. Once again restored to rationalism, Paris will more evenly balance the scales with London, and the expediency of the moment will be replaced by more thought of that tomorrow which even today is rolling across the continental stage.

WHEN A MAN CEASES TO BE SOBER

Probably the most important point to be decided when the violator of a traffic law is hauled into court is, was he drunk or sober at the time of the mishap? Driving past a red light while drunk is one thing; merely driving past is quite another. The degree of inebriety which constitutes being drunk not only becomes a matter for the court to decide, but upon the decision depends the severity of punishment to be meted out.

The difficulty of making an accurate appraisal of a man's sobriety always has been tremendous. So much depends upon the point of view. Nowadays the faintest whiff of an alcoholic breath at the scene of the mishap has come to be regarded as sufficient evidence to tip the scales against the accused.

This, however, does not necessarily mean the solution has always been correct or that all cases have been decided equitably. No less an authority on the subject than the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is now experimenting with a machine aptly called a "drunkometer" to determine, scientifically, whether a man is drunk or sober. Most of the nation's judges, while usually following the rule "one whiff of an alcoholic breath means a drunk," are constantly seeking a better and a more reasonable solution of the problem. It is being realized that it is sometimes a question as to when one ceases to be sober enough to drive. As an example, a man in Chicago who had been arraigned for driving while drunk denied the accusation so vehemently the judge decided to listen. His argument, of course, was not new. Like so many habitual elbow-benders he simply contended he knew his capacity.

But to the astonishment of the court, and the momentary amusement of the spectators, the gentleman before the bar of justice adduced the results of a scientific experiment to prove his point. Only recently, he explained, he had acted the part of a guinea pig at a well-known university in an experiment to determine how much beer a man could drink before he ceased to be sober. His capacity proved to be 16 ten-ounce glasses. Inasmuch as he had not consumed 16 glasses before getting into his car he wasn't drunk! The judge dismissed the case.

Unfortunately, perhaps, it is doubtful that these so-called scientific approaches will prove of practical value. Certainly it is not necessary to go to college to find out one's capacity for drinking. Nor would it be accurate to assume that every man was drunk and unfit to drive a car simply because he had taken one drink. One drink might send grandpa bear-hunting with a buggy whip, but it might take 5 or 10 to convince his son he could safely round a square corner on two wheels at 70 miles per hour.

Play safe. That's the best motto. The ability to drive a car after a session of elbow-bending should not be a matter for experimentation. The capacity to drive, like the ability to judge one's drinking capacity, has a habit of diminishing as the experiment progresses. The tendency to see things double disappears when it comes to counting drinks.

NEW ROMANCE FOR THE SOUTH

(From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.)

Now that the Wagner wage-hour bill has put a national floor under wages, the south may suffer in competing with other regions for new industries, unless it increases the speed at which vocational training is being provided. Dr. B. H. Van Oot, state supervisor of trade and industrial education, called attention to this fact in a recent address he made to the division superintendents of Virginia.

"The . . . act is a splendid law for established industries," Dr. Van Oot said, "but it is a very serious handicap for prospective industries that wish to become established in the south. With the great diversity of trade and industrial schools in the north and extreme west, new industries will have little or no difficulty recruiting trained employees from these schools. The lack of these schools in the south places the burden of training upon the prospective employer who must pay his green labor the minimum wages prescribed in the law. This he cannot afford to do. His only alternative is to import labor that has been trained in the north or west, or to locate his industry in the region where trained labor is available."

Now is the time, then, for southern states to begin to incorporate vocational training in the public school system as quickly as possible. Yet an indiscriminate "dumping" of vocational training into school systems is likely to fail miserably, particularly in the south. The southern student has inherited the romantic tradition, and it will be necessary to invest training in the trades and vocations in the southern school with a dignity consistent with some of the aristocratic ideas of the past.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

All unwittingly Mr. Orson Welles and the Mercury Theater of the Air have made one of the most fascinating and important demonstrations of all time. They have proved that a few effective voices, accompanied by sound effects, can so convince masses of people of a totally unreasonable, completely fantastic proposition as to create a nationwide panic.

They have demonstrated more potently than any argument, demonstrated beyond question of a doubt, the appalling dangers and enormous effectiveness of popular and theatrical demagoguery.

They have cast a brilliant and cruel light upon the failure of popular education.

They have shown up the incredible stupidity, lack of nerve and ignorance of thousands.

They have proved how easy it is to start a mass delusion.

They have uncovered the primeval fears lying under the thinnest surface of the so-called civilized man.

They have shown that man, when the victim of his own gullibility, turns to the government to protect him against his own errors of judgment.

THE CENTURY

The newspapers are correct in playing up this story over every other news event in the world. It is the story of the century.

And far from blaming Mr. Orson Welles, he ought to be given a Congressional medal and a national prize for having made the most amazing and important contributions to the social sciences. For Mr. Orson Welles and his theater have made a greater contribution to an understanding of Hitlerism, Mussolinism, Stalinism, anti-Semitism and all the other terrorism of our times than all the words about them that have been written by reasonable men. They have made the reduction ad absurdum of mass manias. They have thrown more light on recent events in Europe leading to the Munich pact than everything that has been said on the subject by all the journalists and commentators.

NOTHING CREDIBLE

Nothing whatever about the dramatization of the "War of the Worlds" is in the least credible, no matter at what point the hearer might have turned in. The entire verisimilitude was in the names of a few specific places. Monsters were depicted of a type that nobody has ever seen, equipped with "rays" entirely fantastic; they were described as "straddling the Pulaski Skyway" and throughout the broadcast they were referred to as Martians, men from another planet.

A twist of the dial would have established for anybody that the national catastrophe was not being noted on any other point of the hearer's mind. The whole thing was a piece of logic would have dispelled any terror. A notice that the broadcast came from a non-existent agency would have awakened skepticism.

SILHOUETTES

There's beauty in distant lands,
There's art in Paris and Rome,
Sunlight and shadow on desert sands,
But love blossoms best at home.

When Wells Was Young.

All this furore about the radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" carries this old man's memory back to the days of youth, when each new novel by H. G. was eagerly awaited and read with entranced thrill.

In those days, you know, the Wells who wrote was far different from the Wells of today. The same man, it is true, but totally dissimilar novelist.

H. G. Wells has gone through three distinct cycles of his profession. Today, we all know, he is a somewhat heavy—a little on the pseudo side—producer of serious sociological treatises.

But the Wells of today, he wrote sociological novels, stories of everyday men and women with a moral—nearly ways of socialism flavor—sticking out all through. Novels with a serious purpose, they might be called.

But the first Wells, the one of boyhood memory, wrote simply and solely for the entertainment of the masses. His novels were startling fantasies, made to shock and to titillate.

Some of The Others.

Now, of course, the best known is the same "War of the Worlds," dramatically telling the story of an invasion of earth by the strange, octopus-like creatures from Mars. There was another titled "Men Like Gods," in which a little group of earthlings go to a distant planet called "Utopia."

There was "A Honeymoon in Space," one of the earliest of all. In this a young scientist and his bride take their wedding trip in a space machine, traveling from planet to planet of the solar system and finding the queerest sort of people living on each. I remember the people of Venus as gentle, soft and fragile little creatures, their heads covered with feathers instead of hair, very friendly and cordial to the earth visitors, though they are as timid as birds.

"Food of the Gods."

Toward the end of this phase of the Wells efforts, came "The Food of the Gods." This was, like the others, based upon a scientific dream, but it revealed the trend to be followed in his later books.

In this story a scientist had a theory about the rate of growth of all living things, including human babies, animals, insects, fish, trees, grass, plants of all descriptions. His idea was that growth came in spurts, the living thing growing rapidly for a short while and then resting, as it were, for a longer period, and gathering reserve strength for the next spurt of fast growth.

So this scientist invented, just for fun, a powdered food which would make everything grow at

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Scorning An NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—In Evil Presence these days when conditions often makes the difference between victory and defeat in the final quarter of a big football game I sometimes recall a rebuttal by Fielding H. Yost, that stout abstainer and prohibitionist who has walked these many years up to his eyes in incoherent old-grads and never gnawed a dram. One afternoon Mr. Yost stood on the football field at Princeton watching a rather indifferent Michigan team go through the figures of the morrow's work against the Tiger and remarked that they lacked the old pepper. Rather brightly I suggested that some fighters when they went state, including James J. Corbett—surely the most intelligent of them all—broke training with a crash, preferably on champagne, and when the swelling had abated came back better than ever.

"Now, if instead of that water bucket, you were to send a half-dozen champagne coolers on the field along in the third quarter," I proposed. And Yost, with a surprising revival of spirits, or that which you call the old pepper.

Mr. Yost turned a cold glare on the author of this heretical idea and walked away from an evil presence muttering, "Champagne wine! Champagne wine! I have never drunk on a team of mine and never will."

Only a Casual Idea

Well, it was just an idea, tossed off as casually as that, but from knowledge, nevertheless, that before prohibition some football trainers brought their men along on ale and that in the ring some gladiators were known to take a small knock at a bottle of brandy between rounds when their knees began to flutter, and came back to the ring and during prohibition one of the very elaborate social sides of football nearly destroyed a fine old friendship between the business manager and the press agent of a famous team when the business manager phoned the social headquarters late in the evening and asked how things were going. It was common practice to buy several of those burlap bags of rye from some reliable bootlegger, set it out under the bed and have the visiting rooms of the social headquarters in a big hotel and revive college memories far into the night.

About 10 o'clock this night the business manager phoned and asked if the merry-making was proceeding without undue bloodshed and the publicity manager gaily replied: "Oh, yes, sir; yes, sir, indeed, sir; indeed, to be sure, yes, and the wine was wonderful."

"What wine?"

"Why, the champagne wine," said the publicity man. "Everybody had some as long as it lasted, and it was certainly mighty fine, sir."

"That wine," the business manager said bitterly, "was for me, the team."

Other Coaches

So, from piecing in bits of random information, I long ago arrived at the belief that Mr. Yost's fierce contempt for a mere mention of an idea then believed to be unique was not entirely just. He may have had no drunks on any team of his, but other coaches had not been above recruiting as a ringer to help them through in grave emergencies the giant who lives in the bottle.

There may be others who can match the experience of some who played for Washington and Lee against Virginia Polytechnic Institute about 1915 or 1916, a game which dragged through two listless quarters on a stifling autumn day and came brilliantly to life in the second half when Washington and Lee left the locker room stepping high and handsome and singing as they went. A sudden, lifeless football team began throwing passes which floated like bubbles and danced on the fingers of receivers who seemed to delight in juggling the ball ere plucking it down. There were shocking violations of all the standard formulas, play so unorthodox that the enemy, through their own training in football routine, could not believe what they saw, and Washington and Lee won by a couple of touchdowns from a water-cooled squad whose coach had lacked vision or provision, or both.

My informant, who saw Fordham lose to Pitt last week, said Fordham apparently was just played out in the latter part of the game.

"So were we and so was V. P. I. that day," he added, "but between halves certain persons unknown distributed several bottles of an unknown liquid which bubbled and whispered mischievously as our brave lads held the bottle necks to their innocent lips. I know, we won, but I forgot the exact score. As a matter of fact, I was blind."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE PRICE OF MEAT CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 2.—Early in the sixteenth century the great Spanish conquistador, Hernando Cortez, landed on the Mexican beach near Vera Cruz. He had brought some few Andalusian cattle and from them came the first Texas longhorns.

In 1538 Ferdinand DeSoto brought, from Cuba to Florida, a few pigs. Portuguese traders left cattle and pigs in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia in 1553. A few cattle reached the Virginia settlements before 1609, but not until 1610 did the first real lot arrive. The first sheep came to Jamestown from England in 1609.

Today in America there is the amazing flow of meat. Every day, every minute, from farm and ranch, from the hills and valleys, in summer and winter, meat is on the move by truck and by rail. In every meat shop of the cities it is to be found, chilled and clean, awaiting the housewife who goes shopping for it.

Along with the parade of meat goes the parade of prices. The housewife, having so much to spend for meat, wonders at prices. She may blame the producer, the butcher, the packers. Actually, she herself helps make the price.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

For some days I have watched the parade of meat arrive in Chicago. I have seen it alive in the pens, then slaughtered, cleaned and cut for the markets of the nation.

The packing houses are so regulated and the business is so highly competitive, there can be no collusion on prices. The government keeps an exacting control, knows and prints, in official government reports, the profits of the packers. They are not large.

What is not generally understood about meat is that it is a product which must be sold; only frozen meat is stored. The packer sells out his product within the week. The beef he buys must be sold, and sold within a week or 12 days at most. He cannot keep it. The beef killed for the market must go there. He can't make the price. Demand makes them.

About five-eighths of the meat produced in America is produced west of the Mississippi river. About five-eighths of the meat produced is consumed east of the Mississippi river. About 35 per cent of that five-eighths is consumed in the section beginning with Pennsylvania and going northward into New England.

Consider what goes into the making of the price of meat. It requires about six to eight months to make ready a pig for market. It requires from a year to a year and a half to make ready a lamb. From the time a calf is brought into the world there is from a year and a half to two and a half before that calf goes to the cattle market as a steer or cow.

BY TRUCK AND BY RAIL

The livestock must then be moved to market. Remember that five-eighths of the meat is produced west of the Mississippi and that five-eighths of the consumers live east of it. Once it reaches the markets, the packers buy it or the local butchers buy. They then must slaughter it, cut it, prepare it, and sell it.

The retailers know the demands of their customers. The customers have only so much money to spend.

Consider now, what happens and happens frequently. There will come, for instance, 225,000 lambs to the markets. The very next week will come 300,000. That means a matter of an extra million pounds of lamb. The people in the average-sized cities do not go out and buy more lamb because there is an extra amount of it on the market. So, the surplus is shipped to the great centers of population. It has to be moved fast. It sells at 5 cents less the pound. The next week there may come to market only 200,000 lambs. There will be less lamb on the market. Prices will be higher.

Breeders of livestock become enthusiastic and for a period breed more cattle than ever before. The market is given a surplus. Then, for a time, they will breed fewer cattle.

Just now the livestock supply of America is far below normal. The government had growers kill off pigs, lambs and cattle only a few years ago. Then came the drouth and thousands died. There actually is not a shortage of livestock, but the supply is below normal.

All these factors, which are nothing but supply and demand, go into making up the price of meat. When there is less meat, the prices are higher. When there is more meat, the prices are lower. It is a subject rather vital to the American citizen. The population of the United States is less than one-sixth of the world's total. It owns less than a fifth of the world's pigs and less than a tenth of its cattle.

Yet we eat one-fourth of all the beef and pork consumed in the world.

Because of trade restrictions, our export meat trade has suffered. All the meat imported into America would supply a national meat ration not longer than about 12 days.

It is ironic we should import any at all. It is especially ironic Georgia should import millions of dollars in pork, beef and poultry and eggs.

It is important that we are beginning to do something about it.

You Can't See the Scum Until Turmoil Brings It to the Top

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bill Jones was our youngest doctor, and the most independent man in the county. He was a good doctor and knew it, and his sublime faith in himself was shared by his patients. He was poor in money, but rich in spirit, and his good-natured grin wasn't affected by the state of his bank account. He treated rich and poor alike; neither knew nor cared what others thought of him; kept himself above reproach, and felt as free as a wild mustang.

Everybody liked him, and because he kept his chin up and asked no favors, everybody respected him. It is easy to respect those who don't seem to need us.

But the Fates conspired to make trouble for the young doctor and he did a thing that would have ruined his career if the public had known about it. It was one of those man-made sins, wrong only because the law said it was.

Bill needed the help of two loyal and discreet friends who knew how to keep still—not money help, but a service that would cost them nothing and yet would mean everything to him.

He picked out the two men who seemed to like him best and had most reason to feel under obligation to him, and took them into his confidence one at a time.

Then he got his first bitter lesson in the frailty of the ties of friendship.

One friend listened in increasing concern and anxiety; then offered his hand and said: "Anything I can do, Bill." His only reaction to his friend's need was compassion and unhesitating loyalty. He would, as he expressed it, "set to the saw."

The other friend had the little soul of a natural bully. In his heart he felt inferior. As cannibal fish ignore the sound but rush to attack a cripple, so the sight of weakness or need turned his friendliness to hostility. His face hardened and he spoke coldly. His friend's need of him made him feel superior and he gloated over his advantage. He was arrogant, insolent, overbearing.

That little man's reaction was typical of inferior people and inferior races. It is the one infallible sign by which an inferior race reveals its rating.

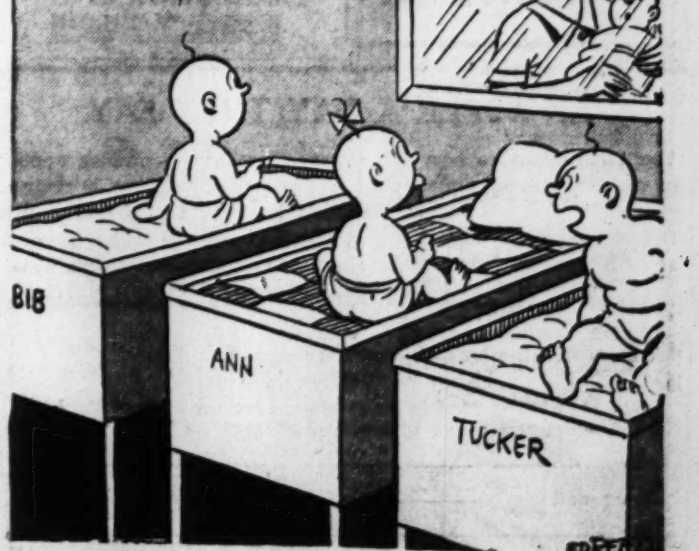

As the under-dog it is a bootlicker, cringing, whining, supplicating, flatterer in oily servility to win favor; but once on top it is insolent, cruel, overbearing, insulting and heartless.

Only those who can keep their dignity and self-respect in adversity can be magnanimous in victory.

VETS JOIN IN PLAN FOR NEW HOSPITAL IN GEORGIA AREA

Survey Must First Fix Population Center of Ex-Servicemen

Plans for a new $2,000,000 veterans' hospital in the Georgia area went forward yesterday as state commanders of veterans' organizations conferred with Senator Walter F. George and Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Frank Whelchel.

Logan Kelley, of Buford, state commander of the American Legion, was appointed temporary chairman of a survey committee. A permanent committee will be formed within the next 30 days, Arthur Cheatham, director of the State Veterans' Service office, said.

Center of State. Before a site for the hospital is selected, the committee must locate the geographic center of the Georgia area and also the center of the veteran population.

The area extends from Oteen, N. C., to Columbus, S. C., from Columbia to Lake City, Fla., and from Lake City to Montgomery, Ala., and back to Oteen. There are approximately 72,000 living veterans in this area.

The peak of the hospital will not be reached until 1949, Cheatham pointed out.

In addition to the hospital plans, the veterans' officials also outlined their legislative program for next year.

Others at Meeting. Others attending the meeting were Charlie Cochran, department commander of the Disabled American Veterans; C. A. Vandiviere, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; J. M. Rogers, state commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans; Harry Wengrow, commander of the Jewish War Veterans; DeLacey Allen, legislative chairman of the American Legion; Jesse Hall, legislative chairman of the D. A. V.; John M. Slaton Jr., manager of the regional office of the Veterans' Administration of Georgia; Scott Williamson, legislative vice chairman of the D. A. V.; Charlie Bernhardt, legislative chairman of the Spanish-American War Veterans, and Glover Bloodworth, assistant director of the State Veterans' Service office.

Telegrams from Senator Richard B. Russell and Georgia's other congressmen were received, Cheatham said.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

LORD OF LORDS. Dr. T. G. Dunning, of London, chairman of the young people's commission of the Baptist World Alliance, while in Atlanta on Tuesday of this week, spoke at noon at the guest of the Kiwanis and Optimist Clubs of Atlanta, and invited guests. Intimately acquainted with world conditions because of his constant travels and the nature of his international responsibilities, Dr. Dunning traced the recent currents of life throughout the world—economic, scientific, social, political—to remind us that above every other need in the world today is the recognition of the need for a Lord of lords and a King of kings.

"Material forces now at work in the world," said Dr. Dunning, "will prove themselves too much for individuals, groups and nations, unless there be a definite and full acknowledgment of the will of God. The radio, the automobile, the airplane, and all the marvelous expressions of our material advancement may prove our utter undoing if they are left undirected by a will above our own and a plan that transcends the selfishness of human nature."

"Neitzche dreamed of the superman and, alas, we see examples of the superman of which Neitzche dreamed—Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini! Well may we remember the words of Browning when he says, 'God save us from great men, and elevate the race,' adding our own petition that a man everywhere may acknowledge Him as Lord of lords and King of kings. Frankly, I can see no way out for the present troubled world except as we shall acknowledge the will and way of the God of righteousness and truth."

And as this student of the world scene spoke to business leaders and leaders of education and statecraft and religion and culture, there was a solemn hush pervading the banquet hall which gave certain evidence that the men present were deeply conscious of

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"The nights are wholesome; then no planets strike, No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm..."

"The nights are wholesome; then no planets strike, No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm..."

We are told that there was no truth in the radio announcement last Sunday night of an attack upon the earth by inhabitants of Mars, but the number of people who accepted the radio fiction as fact indicates an admirable open-mindedness to science, it seems to us. To a world which has been "carriages without horses go," messages run the earth on wires and then without, humans mount the sky, explosions harnessed, germs met with germs, intercepted rays open department store doors, buttermilk from peanuts, pocket lighters bearing light, and such, anything is possible. And, unhappily, what has to do with death and destruction seems especially possible.

It was all a mistake but if reassurance had been delayed long enough there could have resulted a most beneficial getting-together of peoples on the planet earth, including the Fascist and Communist, the democratic and autocratic, white and black and red and yellow, upper and lower classes, vegetarians and meat-eaters, the cold-blooded and the warm, and even, in time, the haters of Roosevelt and those who hate the haters.

The radio people lost a chance to do humanity an incomparable service by withholding its correction a few days. The difficulties that stand today in the path of world-wide organization for peace and prosperity, the jealousies, the conflicts of natural interest, the suspicions, ancient animosities, superiority complexes, racial antipathies, ideologies and whatnot, would become no interference at all if there were really an attack from Mars. In no time there would be a world flag, a world anthem, a world government, a navy and aviation corps, and perhaps a rocket.

The truth he declared. It seemed to me there was quiet agreement with the conclusions of the speaker as he urged the vital need for a closer walk with God. It was altogether fitting that we should link what Dr. Dunning said with the words of Rudyard Kipling, as sung by Dr. Everett Bishop:

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget."

Film Version of 'Mars' Broadcast Will Be Screened Tomorrow Night

Two Theaters Change Features Today; Grand Brings 'Great Waltz' and Rialto 'Judge Hardy's Children'; 'Tobacco Road' Is Coming.

A special midnight return engagement of the movie version of H. G. Wells' fantasy, "War of the Worlds," the radio dramatization which threw thousands of Americans into panic Sunday night, will be given at the Paramount theater tomorrow night.

The movie, produced by United Artists under the title "Things to Come," has the same plot and script, as did the radio play. Raymond Massey has the leading role. The show will begin at 11:30 o'clock.

Two theaters, the Grand and the Rialto, are changing programs today. Loew's Grand is opening with "The Great Waltz," starring Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and Miliza Korjus, while the Rialto is bringing back "Judge Hardy's Children" in which Mickey Rooney and Lewis Stone are the featured players.

Also announced yesterday was the Atlanta engagement of "Tobacco Road," which opens a week's run at the Erlanger theater Monday, November 21.

SINGING DISCOVERY
MAKES DEBUT AT LOEW'S
The life, loves and melodies of Johann Strauss arrive on Loew's screen today with "The Great Waltz."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new musical romance is based on a story of Strauss' younger days, when his struggle for recognition in the musical world went with his search for love. Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and a new singing discovery, Miliza Korjus, have the leading roles.

The Strauss music is featured in "The Great Waltz." Such gems as "Tales of the Vienna Woods" and "Fledermaus" are vocalized by Miss Korjus. Dmitri Tiomkin and Oscar Hammerstein II, adapted the Strauss melodies to the screen.

secret of the judge's investigation at stake and with his honesty open to serious attack, through his desire to spare his daughter from scandal. But the outcome is so surprisingly satisfactory—due to an innocent hint dropped by Andy—that audiences leave with a warmer spot than ever, in their hearts, for this grand Hardy family.

TOBACCO ROAD
STARTS NOVEMBER 21
Praised by Alexander Woolcott as "a superb play" and endorsed by such other writers as George Jean Nathan, Theodore Dreiser, Gilbert Seldes, Stark Young, Roark Bradford, Margaret Ayer Barnes and Carl Van Doren, "Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's drama of the sharecroppers, has been booked for a week at the Erlanger theater, starting Monday night, November 21.

No other stage play of the last 20 years has been more discussed or has been as successful as "Tobacco Road," which is based on the novel of the same name by Erskine Caldwell. In New York it has passed its 2,100th performance, a record achieved by only one other play in the 205 years of the American theater and starts its sixth consecutive year on December 4. Outside New York it has been given in 191 cities with return engagements of from one night to 15 weeks in 54 of them. In all it has made three tours to the Pacific coast and has visited 35 states.

The company to be seen here is the only one on tour and is headed by the noted dramatic star, John Barton, who will play the central character of Jeeter Lester.

Joe Louis To Defend Title Against John Lewis January 27

KRIEGER TO BOX EITHER APOSTOLI OR VET CORBETT

Armstrong-Garcia Welter Title Bout Is Reset for November 25.

By DREW MIDDLETON.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Joe Louis, czar of all the heavyweights, who arrived in town murmuring "fighting is my business" will return to his trade in Madison Square Garden on Friday night, January 27. His opponent will be John Henry Lewis, the negro who has been light-heavyweight champion of the world since 1935.

Mike Jacobs arranged for the Bomber's fifth defense of his title in a conference with John Roxborough, one of Louis' two managers, and Gus Greenlee, of Pittsburgh, who guides the Phoenix (Ariz.) light-heavyweight king. Quizzed on the financial details Jacobs snapped, "they'll be released in a few days."

Lewis, who beat Al Gainer, of New Haven, Conn., in 15 slow rounds at New Haven last Friday night, will arrive in town in the morning to meet Louis, already on hand for the postponed Cefirino Garcia-Henry Armstrong duel. There will be a formal signing at the Hippodrome in the morning with the customary fanfare.

The fight is an unusual one. It is the first all-negro heavyweight title battle since Jack Johnson, then champion, outpointed battling Jim Johnson in Paris in 1913. Jacobs' office made it plain the fight in no way would interfere with negotiations for a bout between Louis and Max Baer on the coast in April.

The heavyweight champion has done no ring work since he hampered Max Baer's last Friday night in one round last June. Before he licked the German, he had knocked out Nathan Mann and Harry Thomas and outpointed Tommy Farr in defense of the title he won from Jim Braddock at Chicago, Jan. 22, 1937.

"WON'T DRAW FLIES."
The immediate reaction to the bout in New York was astonishment. The boys on cauliflower row bellowed, "it won't draw flies." On second thought they changed their minds, reminding listeners that Jacobs makes very few poor matches from a business standpoint.

Armstrong-Garcia
Meet November 25.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Association Commission, Promoter Mike Jacobs, and other interested parties went into a series of huddles today and more or less straightened out the championship brackets in the welterweight and middleweight boxing divisions.

From their deliberations came the statements:
1—Henry Armstrong and Cefirino Garcia will tangle in their postponed welterweight title bout November 25, and
2—Solly Krieger, who won some claim to the 160-pound laurels by whipping Al Hostak in Seattle last night, probably will try to gain universal recognition by meeting the winner of the November 18 go between Fred Apostoli and Young Corbett, Canton, Mass. challengers.

The title match was tentatively slated by Promoter Jacobs for January 13 at Madison Square Garden.

Huddle No. 1 came when Armstrong visited Dr. George Washington Riley again for treatment for the joint in his back which he loosened during his final training session yesterday. Both osteopath and Henry announced the little champion was doing better than expected, and expressed confidence he would be able to go to the post November 25.

The Athletic Commission sanctioned the new date.

The new Armstrong-Garcia date forced Jacobs to rearrange his Garden schedule by setting the heavyweight bout between Gunar Barlund, of Finland, and Bob Pastor, of New York, back from November 25 to January 6.

Hostak Badly Bruised
In Fight With Krieger.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 2.—(AP) Al Hostak's physician said tonight the middleweight fighter probably would be unable to box for three or four months as a result of injuries he suffered last night in a 15-round bout with Solly Krieger, of New York.

Examinations today disclosed

Hostak broke two small bones in his left hand, and that his right eye was badly bruised. Both eyes were swollen, the right one closed tightly.

Krieger too bore visible evidence of the bout he won. He couldn't wear his hat because of a large bump behind his left ear.

SPORTSMEN SEEK TO RULE GAME, FISH AFFAIRS

Shown above is an illustrated map of proposed game and fish districts in the state under a seven-man commission which hunters and fishermen of the state hope the legislature will approve. Dr. Clabus Lloyd, of Gainesville, one of the moving spirits in the commission plan, is shown holding the map. A state-wide meeting will be held today at Macon. Sportsmen plan to get organized and adopt a workable plan to present to the legislature at the next meeting. Much interest follows today's meeting.

GA. SPORTSMEN
MEET AT MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 2.—Sportsmen of Georgia will meet here tomorrow to organize a state-wide association for hunters and fishermen and to discuss their plans for a movement to get the Georgia division of wildlife divorced from politics.

H. W. MacKenzie, director of the department of conservation for the state of Wisconsin, will assist the Georgians in their study of commissions. He also will make the principal address at the one-day meeting.

Director MacKenzie arrived in Macon Wednesday night from Madison, Wis. He is interested in the work of the Georgia sportsmen and is coming to the state solely for the meeting. The state of Wisconsin is paying his expenses to Macon.

Registration for the meeting will begin at 10 a. m. Thursday and the convention will get under way at 10 a. m. Friday. It will be held at the Hotel Lanier.

The convention will be open to all hunters and fishermen in the state. Reservations for a Dutch luncheon to be held at 1 p. m. Thursday may be made by writing or wiring Ben Chatfield, president of the Bibb County Game and Fish Club, Macon.

Bonebenders Beat
Panther Team, 13-0

In a return game Wednesday afternoon at O'Keefe, the Bonebenders defeated the Panthers, 13-0. The Bonebenders won a game earlier in the season from O'Keefe, 20-0.

The Bonebenders were kept in the hole in the first half by Bubber Ezell's fine kicking but broke the ice in the third quarter. "Dope" Bragg, Bonebender tackle, recovered a fumble on O'Keefe's 10-yard line. Saville scored after a short drive.

Krieger too bore visible evidence of the bout he won. He couldn't wear his hat because of a large bump behind his left ear.

Jimmy Foxx Voted Best In American

Dickey Second Most Valuable and Greenberg Is Third.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—James Emory Foxx, Boston Red Sox slugger, today was the first man in the history of baseball to be named "most valuable" three times in his career.

Foxx, who made a gallant comeback after being considered on the downward trail a year ago, and bothered all this year by a sinus infection, was overwhelmingly voted best by the baseball writers of America.

Of a possible 336 votes, Jolting Jimmie polled 305 points and was named on every ballot. Of the 24 ballots cast, 19 named him in the No. 1 spot and of the other five two selected him as second choice and one each ranked him third, fourth and fifth.

A first-place nomination counted 14 points, second 9, third 8, fourth 7, etc., a new point-scoring system put into effect this year.

Second to Foxx in the poll was Bill Dickey, world champion Yankee catcher, who received three first-place votes, 11 seconds, two each in the third, fourth and fifth spots, one sixth and two sevenths for a 196 total. Only one committee failed to name him.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit bomber who led both leagues in home runs and came within two of Babe Ruth's all-time major league mark with 53 round-trippers, was third with 162 votes. He was not named in first place by any of the writers but only one of the committee failed to name him at all.

Following is the complete list of players receiving one or more votes in the balloting, and number of points scored by each:

Jimmie Foxx, Boston 305
Bill Dickey, New York 196
Hank Greenberg, Detroit 162
Charley Ruffing, New York 148
Buck Newsum, St. Louis 146
Mel Harder, Cleveland 144
Joe Gordon, New York 142
Hal Trosky, Cleveland 140
Ken Keltner, Cleveland 138
Monty Stratton, Chicago 136
Mel Harder, Cleveland 134
Bob Johnson, Philadelphia 132
Lou Gehrig, New York 130
Joe Vornik, Boston 128
George McQuinn, St. Louis 126

Duke Announces
Tough '39 Schedule

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 2.—(UP) Athletic Director Wallace Wade tonight announced a 1939 nine-team schedule for unbeaten, undefeated, unscathed on Duke University, listing three eastern teams, five Southern conference rivals and one annual Southeastern conference foe.

The schedule:
September 30—Davidson at Davidson.
October 7—Colgate in Duke stadium.
October 14—Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh, Pa.
October 21—Syracuse in Duke stadium.
October 28—Wake Forest in Duke stadium.
November 4—Georgia Tech in Atlanta, Ga.
November 11—V. M. I. at Lexington, Va.
November 18—North Carolina in Duke stadium.
November 25—North Carolina State at Raleigh, N. C.

Williamson Picks Tulane Over Alabama; Sees Possible Tie; Tech, Georgia Strong Choices

Tulane over Alabama by a nose, but this game may be a possible tie. That is the way Williamson figures the Southeastern conference's No. 1 attraction Saturday. Alabama's rating percentage is 92.2 against 92.3 for the Green Wave.

Georgia Tech and Georgia hold strong edges over Kentucky and Florida, respectively. Mercer is picked to whip Presbyterian handily and Oglethorpe is the underdog against Miami U. at Miami.

Pittsburgh has an apparent safe edge over Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame rates better than nine points above the Nav.

Williamson picks California over Southern California in the big far west game Saturday.

(Copyright, 1938, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

PREDICTION SCHEDULE FOR WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 6, 1938.

EXPLANATION: Figure after each team is its rating according to the current Williamson Football Rating Table, published earlier this week. Probable winner is named in capital letters. T, after visiting team rating means tie game or close outcome likely; an "upset" possible; R, means prediction contrary to ratings; F, Friday afternoon; M, Friday night; S, Saturday night; Su, Sunday.

Hunt Asks Boone Not To See Miss Markley Again

By DENVER BARDWELL

"And it'd be good of me to come in mighty seldom, wouldn't it, Mr. Hunt?" Boone asked. "I understand and I'll be right glad to do like you want."

"Don't take me wrong, Boone," Hunt said anxiously. "I'm coming to like you a lot better. I just want to make things easier for you and everybody."

"Tell me, Mr. Hunt, do you blame me for loving a girl when I just can't help myself? Is that something to disgrace a girl in this camp?"

"Alice is an impetuous girl, Boone. She let you hug and kiss her down by the river in sight of children."

"That was all my fault, Mr. Hunt. She couldn't help herself. I'm sure mighty sorry and you can tell everybody that I grabbed her and stole a kiss when she come out to graze her new horse. I don't care what they think and say about me."

"I wouldn't tell a lie, Boone, not even to save a woman's reputation. You're an honorable man. I believe you'll agree that it's best for you not to see Miss Markley any more."

"A lot of talk could be saved if you'd just said that at the beginning," Boone declared with the first tinge of resentment in his voice. "If Miss Alice tells me now to stay out her sight, I'll make myself mighty scarce 'round camp and on the trail. If you wouldn't lie to save a woman's reputation, you'll tell me the truth about this. Has Miss Alice promised to marry Harold Manning?"

Hunt hesitated, seemed distressed, then said slowly, "No."

"Thank you," Boone said and walked briskly away, ending the conversation.

The bearded New Englander stood there for a moment, watching the shadowy form of the plainsman disappear, then shook his head and murmured to himself in vexation as he turned back toward the wagons.

Boone did not go straight to his grazing animals. He remembered the absence of McCandless and his men from their wagons and put into practice an old Indian custom of never returning over the same trail when enemies were known to be on the warpath.

He circled widely and reached the river edge 200 yards above the mules and horses. From there he walked cautiously and noiselessly among the scattered willows, going but a few steps at a time between pauses to listen. Stars were visible in part of the sky; thick clouds banked across the eastern sky hid a full moon. At 20 feet objects were merely wispy shadows, the young willow leaves giving their aid to the darkening clouds.

Arriving at the spot where he had strewn willow branches in cutting the stakes more than an hour before, he looked out on the dimly starlit slope above the trees and saw the mules grazing. Here, if anywhere under cover of the river bank, a bushwhacker would have hidden himself to wait for his return.

Farther down the river a cow bellowed for her calf and a mule, perhaps having grazed out his staked limit, brayed loudly to be moved onto fresh grass. Mules were quick to learn that manner of talking to their masters. Boone leaned against a willow trunk, rifle drooped on his arm, and watched the river bank.

A few steps below him flood currents had cut away the shore line and willow fringing, leaving a deep pool of the swirling current under a six-foot bluff at the edge of the grassy slope. There could not be a hiding place below that for an enemy. In spite of his belief that McCandless had shown friendliness to him that morning in the presence of witnesses for the purpose of a quick killing, he decided that his fears for this moment were unfounded.

As he started out toward the mules, his foot bumped on a water-logged rock in the darkness, his boot tangled in a vine as he supposed, and he stumbled. Reaching down to untangle his foot, he felt a leather rope instead of a vine. Surprised, he investigated further and found that one end of the long leather lariat had been fastened about the round stone.

"Some boatman's stow anchor," he thought and went on to the mules and two horses.

Kentucky, having a shorter tether than the other five animals, had cropped all the young grass within reach. He extended his long, shapely neck and whickered a gently anxious plea to Boone, small ears pointed at the plainsman expectantly. Boone walked on to the racer, caught his halter and led him close to the stake.

Before he stooped to pull on the stake, he looked all about as far as he could see in the dusky starlight. At some distance off toward the lower end of the river he could see a dark object that seemed to be moving toward him. He watched the faintly outlined shadow for a moment, saw it stop moving, made sure that it was not high enough to be a human form and then bent to the task of loosening the stake.

With the stake in hand, he led Kentucky to fresh grass and pulled a hatchet from under his belt. He carried the hatchet from his wagon when staking stobs had to be cut or driven into the ground. Before he started giving his attention to driving the stake, he again looked for the moving object and found that it had come nearer, within some 30 steps of him. It was clearer in outline now, though still quite indistinguishable as to species. Then the cow began lowing for her calf again and the shadowy figure seemed to turn its head a moment, then bent it toward the ground Boone was reassured and forgot his caution. When he began driving the stake he did not see the "calf" rise up into the shape of a stooping man and move swiftly toward him.

A few strokes of the hatchet head had driven the stake. Boone made the last stroke at the stob and started to arise. Kentucky suddenly ceased his grazing, snorted and ran around Boone. The latter tried to jump and swing about, hatchet in hand, but a crash of something hard and painful struck his head. He went down in a great abyss of black night, and the lowing cow stood over him clenched the black, heavy gun that he had crushed upon the skull of his victim, lifted it from his side and pointed its muzzle at Boone's chest. The hammer clicked as it was cocked.

One of the night watchers of the grazing stock a hundred yards up the slope called to another watchman and received answer. The man who aimed the gun at Boone's heart hurried, listened to the talking night guards, let the hammer of his gun down and put the weapon into holster. He knelt beside the motionless form in the ground, seemed satisfied and arose, chuckling with low glee.

"You ain't so tough, after all, buffalo skinner!" he said with scorn. "I guess you'll hold wile I git the rock."

He glided down to the willows, running like an Indian, and found the rock with the leather rope. Holding the heavy weight in his hands, he ran out of the willow thicket, stopped a brief moment above the low bluff at the edge of the deep in-cut of the river as if he would assure himself that the water was deep enough for his purpose, then hurried on to Boone. Agonizing consciousness seeped into Jere Boone's mind. His head hurt him fearfully; his body lay, powerless of muscle, upon the cool ground. He moved his right hand that was stretched out at full length on the grass. With a great effort he tried to remember what he had been doing, what had happened.

His moving fingers felt the hatchet. Kentucky snorted a few steps away, ears pointed toward the river. Boone slowly turned his aching head in the direction of the horse's gaze and saw a man coming toward him with something heavy clutched in his arms. Then like lightning crash he remembered everything. The stone dropped with a heavy wind upon the ground beside him.

His first impulse was to go for his guns, but this man who had knocked him out had surely taken them. He waited and watched, lying on his back, moving not a muscle except for the involuntary clutching of right-hand fingers about the hatchet handle.

Boone recognized the rock and rope and knew now that preparations had been carefully made to murder him and hide traces of the murder under the river waters. When the moon splashed through a break in the clouds the man with the rope raised his head to look cautiously up the slope. Boone saw the unmistakable features of Tom Hendon. A revivifying rage ran through him as the cool murderousness of the squaw man's purpose became clear.

Hendon got the rope untangled, bent over and roughly started to pull Boone's waist to run the rope end under. His hand was two feet above the prostrate plainsman's middle as he worked and grunted to pull the rope through on the other side. He felt the sudden taunting of the body under his hands, but his quick cry of alarm as he slackened his lifting hold was smothered in his throat. The hatchet blade, like a stroke of lightning, caught him on the back of his head. He fell heavily on the ground as Boone sprang to his feet.

For a few seconds Jere stood wavering unsteadily, fighting dizziness. His head hurt with throbbing agony while he looked in every direction, fearing Tom Hendon had not been alone. But he saw nobody. An exploring hand found a bleeding gash under his beaver cap.

He dropped the hatchet and felt of the guns in his holsters, surprised to find they had not been taken from him. He tried to examine the motionless squaw man, but when he stooped he nearly plunged on his head. If Hendon was dead, he wanted to hide his body, but he must first regain strength. A weakening nausea sent him staggering to the thicket of willows and the gravelly shore line of the river beyond them.

While he supported himself on knees and one hand at the edge of the stream, bathing his wounded head, he heard Peter McCandless calling, "Tom!" in suppressed, anxious voice along the slope.

If McCandless discovered Hendon, he would have the whole camp aroused against him, Boone was sure. In the present state of his reputation with the emigrants McCandless could persuade them to any extreme. Jere put on his cap and ran through the willow thicket, drawing his right-hand gun as he went.

GRAIN PRICES SCORE FRACTIONAL GAINS

Trading Is Stimulated by Efforts to Enlarge Export Sales.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Stimulated by prospective augmented efforts to enlarge export sales, and by trade fears of a short domestic crop, wheat prices today scored fractional gains.

Special attention as the day drew to an end was given to a statement from Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture that the farm administration might resort to direct salesmanship in its attempt to dispose of 100,000,000 bushels of United States wheat in world markets.

Apprehension concerning a short domestic crop was emphasized by a report from B. W. Snow, leading unofficial specialist, that owing to moisture deficit and to decreased acreage demands for wheat, there is reason to expect more than normal acreage abandonment next spring in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, with a doubtful crop yield for the area that remains.

Previously, late upturns of values in the Chicago wheat market averaged a little lower, influenced by forecasts of some rain or snow throughout much of the domestic belt. Another drag on quotations was that export business today in North American grains continued at almost zero.

These prices, quoted by the White Provision Company, are on strictly corn-fed hogs.

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN No. 16

Patiently Tarzan interpreted the clues of the abandoned camp. There were about eight men. I can see where they lay in the grass. They ate a tough old bear. Therefore, they had no firearms to kill better game. "And there were white men?" Wood asked.

The ape-man nodded. "Some of the bear's bones were split and the marrow extracted. That is the habit of natives. Some of the bones are whole. That suggests white men. Also, I see in the grass the marks of the cords that bound packs. Only white men use packs."

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Wood peered intently, then shrugged. He could see nothing. "If you can find their trail," he suggested eagerly, "we'll follow them." "Not we," Tarzan answered sternly. "I travel much faster alone. Return to my place. You will do as I say. That is all."

Today in Atlanta's History

One Year Ago Today, Wednesday, Nov. 3, 1937:

Representative Eugene Cox predicted that the passage of the wage-hour law would

"prostrate the south."

Two Years Ago Today, Tuesday, Nov. 3, 1936:

General election records were broken as Atlanta and Fulton county rolled up huge majorities for President Roosevelt.

Five Years Ago Today, Friday, Nov. 3, 1933:

John Gough, a negro, confessed to a series of streetcar holdups in which one man was seriously wounded.
